

Playground Memory

In elementary school, I had many experiences that garnered memories. I was often bullied on the playground during recess because of my skinniness and height. The larger boys saw me as a target for their ego to inflate. They might have had problems at home, or were bullied themselves, and were projecting their frustrations on me.

Anyways, after being locked in a locker, put headfirst into a toilet, punched and pushed around, called names, played jokes on, and other abuse, I finally had enough. I cracked. I could not psychologically take anymore hurt and punctures to my self-esteem.

A day or two after my birthday, I was on the school basketball court, shooting hoops. My mother had given me a basketball as a gift, and I was reveling in the fun of this new sport. But as expected (though I did not think about it at the time), another child started to bother me. He came up to me, and without a word, took the basketball out of my hands as I was dribbling. I was so shocked and emotionally tied to that gift that without a moment's notice, I punched the kid in the face. I knocked him down and he immediately ran away crying. I never asked if he was playfully taking the ball from me, but I had had enough bullying in my day to react strongly to such an action.

Apparently, the boy went to the principal and reported my violence. I was called to the principal's office during my next class, and walked in with my own form of ethics. The boy had been a bully, and he deserved a repercussion. However, the principal and I did not see eye to eye, naturally. He called my mother about the incident, and she was surprised that I would do such a thing. I had always been the quiet kid, playing with toys by himself, or tagging along with other children as more of a witness than a major participant. No one's mother expects their child to punch someone, but it happens for certain reasons. In my case, I had been dominated by my classmates for years, and that pent-up anger and shame resulted in a violent action.

From then on, I figured out that I did not need to be bullied. I could take action. I could respond. I found that my anger and resentment gave me a wild and unstoppable strength, which was unmatched by the usual fighting powers of a

Haruki Murakami Matthew C. Strecher, Paul L. Thomas, 2016-03-22 Japanese writer Haruki Murakami has achieved incredible popularity in his native country and world wide as well as rising critical acclaim Murakami in addition to receiving most of the major literary awards in Japan has been nominated several times for the Nobel Prize Yet his relationship with the Japanese literary community proper known as the Bundan has not been a particularly friendly one One of Murakami's central and enduring themes is a persistent warning not to suppress our fundamental desires in favor of the demands of society at large Murakami's writing over his career reveals numerous recurring motifs but his message has also evolved creating a catalogue of works that reveals Murakami to be a challenging author Many of those challenges lie in Murakami's blurring of genre as well as his rich blending of Japanese and Western mythologies and styles all while continuing to offer narratives that attract and captivate a wide range of readers Murakami is as e Kenzabur once contended not a Japanese writer so much as a global one and as such he merits a central place in the classroom in order to confront readers and students but to be challenged as well Reading teaching and studying Murakami serves well the goal of rethinking this world It will open new lines of inquiry into what constitutes national literatures and how some authors in the era of blurred national and cultural boundaries seek now to transcend those boundaries and pursue a truly global mode of expression
