This set of webpages (what's a set of webpages? a webchapter?) is intended for anyone who wants to create artificial languages— for a fantasy or an alien world, as a hobby, as an interlanguage. It presents linguistically sound methods for creating naturalistic languages— which can be reversed to create non-naturalistic languages. It suggests further reading for those who want to know more, and shortcuts for those who want to know less.

A Mind for Language Harry van der Hulst, 2023-09-21 How does human language arise in the mind To what extent is it innate or something that is learned How do these factors interact The questions surrounding how we acquire language are some of the most fundamental about what it means to be human and have long been at the heart of linguistic theory This book provides a comprehensive introduction to this fascinating debate unravelling the arguments for the roles of nature and nurture in the knowledge that allows humans to learn and use language An interdisciplinary approach is used throughout allowing the debate to be examined from philosophical and cognitive perspectives It is illustrated with real life examples and the theory is explained in a clear easy to read way making it accessible for students and other readers without a background in linguistics An accompanying website contains a glossary questions for reflection discussion themes and project suggestions to further deepen students understanding of the material

Building Imaginary Worlds Mark J.P. Wolf, 2014-03-14 Mark J P Wolf's study of imaginary worlds theorizes world building within and across media including literature comics film radio television board games video games the Internet and more Building Imaginary Worlds departs from prior approaches to imaginary worlds that focused mainly on narrative medium or genre and instead considers imaginary worlds as dynamic entities in and of themselves Wolf argues that imaginary worlds which are often transnarrative transmedial and transauthorial in nature are compelling objects of inquiry for Media Studies Chapters touch on a theoretical analysis of how world building extends beyond storytelling the engagement of the audience and the way worlds are conceptualized and experienced a history of imaginary worlds that follows their development over three millennia from the fictional islands of Homer's Odyssey to the present internarrative theory examining how narratives set in the same world can interact and relate to one another an examination of transmedial growth and adaptation and what happens when worlds make the jump between media an analysis of the transauthorial nature of imaginary worlds the resulting concentric circles of authorship and related topics of canonicity participatory worlds and subcreation s relationship with divine Creation Building Imaginary Worlds also provides the scholar of imaginary worlds with a glossary of terms and a detailed timeline that spans three millennia and more than 1 400 imaginary worlds listing their names creators and the works in which they first appeared
