The Luminous Landscape of the Afterlife Matthew McKay, 2021-06-01 Reveals the afterlife as a fluid realm of imagination and invention a luminous landscape created entirely of consciousness Explains how to navigate the early stages of the afterlife how we learn and grow in the spirit world and how to release anxiety about the end of life Includes exercises and meditations to prepare you for navigating and communicating in spirit There is no better source of information on death and the afterlife than someone who has died and lives in spirit Channeling his late son Jordan psychologist Matthew McKay offers a postdeath guide for the living revealing in vivid detail what to expect when we die and how to prepare for the wonders of the afterlife Specifically describing the transition experience and the early stages of the afterlife including how to navigate each stage Jordan shows how death is a fluid realm of imagination and invention a luminous landscape created entirely of consciousness He explains how a soul that has newly crossed over is an amnesiac arriving without senses a nervous system and all that has anchored us to the world Jordan details how to navigate without a body how we learn and grow in the spirit world and how to release anxiety about the end of life and instead view it as another stage of being He shows that the inferno described by Dante is an optional nightmare caused by thought projections that overwhelm the newly transitioned soul and he reveals that the bardos are where souls who are beset with fear and false beliefs spend time learning and recovering Providing profound relief from the fear of death as well as exercises to prepare you for navigating and communicating in spirit Jordan s message reveals how love is the bonding element that holds all of consciousness and the afterlife together McKay also documents the unbreakable bond between the living and the dead and teaches the skill of channeling allowing you to connect to loved ones who have passed
