

ANATOMY — Of A — HANGOVER

HEART

When your body metabolizes alcohol, it creates ketones, which can make your body more acidic, leading to metabolic acidosis.

Symptoms: Arrhythmias, fatigue, and heart palpitations

LIVER

Uses up body's stores of glutathione, an antioxidant that helps metabolize the toxic substance acetaldehyde present in alcohol, making the toxin build up. Also impairs ability to metabolize sugars.

Oxidative stress produces free radicals, which disrupt normal liver functions.
Symptoms: Tissue damage, sweating, vertigo, nausea, rapid pulse, low blood sugar, general weakness, mood disturbances, brain fog, fatigue, and prolonged recovery time

CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM

Slightly toxic chemicals known as congeners are what give alcohol most of their taste and aroma, but they also throw the nervous system out of balance.

Symptoms: Sweating, tremors, and sensitivity to light, sound, and touch

SLEEP CYCLE

When alcohol is being consumed, the alcohol shuts down glutamine production. Glutamine is a naturally occurring stimulant. Once alcohol consumption stops, the body over-produces glutamine, which is called the "glutamine rebound." This rebound leads to disturbed sleep cycle, fast heart rate, sweating, and high blood pressure. The final result is a poor night's sleep, fatigue, and impairment of natural healing processes. A good night's sleep is critical to the body's ability to heal.

Symptoms: Fatigue, impairment of natural healing processes, and heartburn

BRAIN

One of the key issues with hangovers is inflammation in the brain. Congeners (other toxic substances in bottles of liquor) as well as waste products of actual alcohol metabolism lead to irritation of brain cells and membranes. This causes headache, nausea, confusion, and irritability. Most of us feel a bit "foggy" and slow in the morning after a big night of drinking. Brain inflammation is the major cause of that. Oxidative stress produces free radicals, which disrupt normal brain functions.

Symptoms: Nausea, fatigue, brain fog, fatigue, and prolonged recovery time

HEAD

Dehydration means less water in the brain, making it shrink and pull on the membranes, which causes a headache and can inflame the membranes.

Symptoms: Headache

STOMACH

Directly irritates and inflames stomach lining, causing gastritis and delays stomach emptying. Also increases gastric acid production.

Symptoms: Nausea, vomiting

KIDNEYS

Prevents from properly filtering blood and absorbing water, leading to dehydration and increased urination. Urination removes essential nutrients from the body. Oxidative stress produces free radicals, which disrupt normal kidney functions.

Symptoms: Nausea, fatigue, brain fog, fatigue, and prolonged recovery time

PANCREAS & INTESTINES

The ethanol in alcoholic drinks increases the amount of digestive secretions produced by the pancreas and intestines.

Symptoms: Pain, nausea, and vomiting

MUSCLES

Fatty acids build up in the liver because it cannot properly metabolize alcohol, which combines with the brain's reduction of anti-diuretic production to cause muscle dehydration.

Symptoms: Fatigue and weakness

Your Drinking Michael S. Levy,2021-01-12 Accepting that there is no one size fits all approach to controlling drinking the latest edition of this bestselling book will help you assess your drinking and determine whether moderation or abstinence is the best path for you For decades the standard treatment for people struggling with alcohol consumption has focused on convincing them to admit that they are an alcoholic to stop drinking entirely and to enter into a program most commonly Alcoholics Anonymous But in his more than thirty five year career as an addiction specialist working with people who want to change their drinking habits Michael S Levy has found that the routes to behavioral change actually vary And although abstinence is the successful route for many people others can moderate their drinking on their own or with professional help In this practical effective and compassionate book Levy helps people take control of their alcohol problem by teaching them how to think about and address their drinking habits Beginning with a set of self assessments that reveal whether the reader s use of alcohol is creating problems Levy explains the causes of problem drinking discusses the growing recognition of the various ways an alcohol use disorder can show itself and talks about why it is so difficult to change Offering advice for choosing between moderating your drinking or abstaining altogether he also touches on coping with slipups fighting helplessness and the fear of failure and knowing when moderation is not achievable The book is unique in that instead of telling people what they need to do it meets people at their stage of change and level of readiness to change and helps them decide for themselves what they need to do Drawing on the latest scientific evidence this new edition includes a chapter on the concept of self medication a useful but at times overused idea a chapter on the concurrent use of drugs particularly cannabis during recovery an exploration of modern strategies for dealing with drinking including technology apps that count drinks for example and medications that curb alcohol consumption reflections on the use of stigma communication strategies for individuals seeking to share their struggle with others an exploration of common triggers additional worksheets and tips to achieve success further material about self help programs and insights about the dark side of addiction treatment
