Zebra Stripes Tim Caro, 2016-12-05 From eminent biologists like Alfred Russel Wallace and Charles Darwin to famous authors such as Rudyard Kipling in his Just So Stories many people have asked Why do zebras have stripes There are many explanations but until now hardly any have been seriously addressed or even tested In Zebra Stripes Tim Caro takes readers through a decade of painstaking fieldwork examining the significance of black and white striping and after systematically dismissing every hypothesis for these markings with new data he arrives at a surprising conclusion zebra markings are nature's defense against biting fly annoyance Popular explanations for stripes range from camouflage to confusion of predators social facilitation and even temperature regulation It is a serious challenge to test these proposals on large animals living in the wild but using a combination of careful observations simple field experiments comparative information and logic Caro is able to weigh up the pros and cons of each idea Eventually driven by experiments showing that biting flies avoid landing on striped surfaces observations that striping is most intense where biting flies are abundant and knowledge of zebras susceptibility to biting flies and vulnerability to the diseases that flies carry Caro concludes that black and white stripes are an adaptation to thwart biting fly attack Not just a tale of one scientist's quest to solve a classic mystery of biology Zebra Stripes is also a testament to the tremendous value of longitudinal research in behavioral ecology demonstrating how observation experiment and comparative research can together reshape our understanding of the natural world
