QUESTION A 60-year-old male with a 20-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports that he has been unable to eat as much as he used to and has lost about 10 pounds. He also mentions that he has been feeling increasingly thirsty and has noticed some blurry vision. He has no recent changes in his medications and has been following his diet and exercise routine. He has no family history of diabetes and no other medical conditions. He is currently on insulin therapy. His last HbA1c was 8.5%.

ANSWER The patient's symptoms are consistent with hyperglycemia. The most likely cause is a new-onset or worsening of type 2 diabetes mellitus. The patient's HbA1c of 8.5% indicates poor glycemic control. The symptoms of fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite are common in uncontrolled diabetes. The increased thirst and blurry vision are also suggestive of hyperglycemia. The patient's long history of diabetes and current insulin therapy suggest that his condition may be worsening. A thorough physical examination and laboratory tests, including a fasting glucose level and a repeat HbA1c, should be performed to confirm the diagnosis. If the diagnosis is confirmed, the patient's insulin regimen should be adjusted, and he should be educated on the importance of maintaining good glycemic control to prevent complications.
