Yang, 2014-01-20 This book discusses how biological molecules exert their function and regulate biological processes with a clear focus on how conformational dynamics of proteins are critical in this respect In the last decade the advancements in computational biology nuclear magnetic resonance including paramagnetic relaxation enhancement and fluorescence based ensemble single molecule techniques have shown that biological molecules proteins DNAs and RNAs fluctuate under equilibrium conditions The conformational and energetic spaces that these fluctuations explore likely contain active conformations that are critical for their function More interestingly these fluctuations can respond actively to external cues which introduces layers of tight regulation on the biological processes that they dictate A growing number of studies have suggested that conformational dynamics of proteins govern their role in regulating biological functions examples of this regulation can be found in signal transduction molecular recognition apoptosis protein ion other molecules translocation and gene expression On the experimental side the technical advances have offered deep insights into the conformational motions of a number of proteins These studies greatly enrich our knowledge of the interplay between structure and function On the theoretical side novel approaches and detailed computational simulations have provided powerful tools in the study of enzyme catalysis protein drug design protein ion other molecule translocation and protein folding aggregation to name but a few This work contains detailed information not only on the conformational motions of biological systems but also on the potential governing forces of conformational dynamics transient interactions chemical and physical origins thermodynamic properties New developments in computational simulations will greatly enhance our understanding of how these molecules function in various biological events Research in Computational Molecular Biology Satoru Miyano, Jill Mesirov, Simon Kasif, Sorin Istrail, Pavel Pevzner, Michael Waterman, 2005-05-04 This volume contains the papers presented at the 9th Annual International Conference on Research in Computational Molecular Biology RECOMB 2005 which was held in Cambridge

Massachusetts on May 14 18 2005 The RECOMB conference series was started in 1997 by Sorin Istrail Pavel Pevzner and Michael Waterman The list of previous meetings is shown below in the section Previous RECOMB Meetings RECOMB 2005 was hosted by the Broad Institute of MIT and Harvard and Boston University's Center for Advanced Biomedical Technology and was excellently organized by the Organizing Committee Co chairs Jill Mesirov and Simon Kasif This year 217 papers were submitted of which the Program Committee selected 39 for presentation at the meeting and inclusion in this proceedings Each submission was refereed by at least three members of the Program Committee After the completion of the referees reports an extensive Web based discussion took place for making decisions From RECOMB 2005 the Steering Committee decided to publish the proceedings as a volume of Lecture Notes in Bioinformatics LNBI for which the founders of RECOMB are also the editors The prominent volume number LNBI 3500 was assigned to this proceedings The RECOMB conference series is closely associated with the Journal of Computational Biology which traditionally publishes special issues devoted to presenting full versions of selected conference papers The RECOMB Program Committee consisted of 42 members as listed on a separate page I would like to thank the RECOMB 2005 Program Committee members for their dedication and hard work
