Introduction

Domestic violence against women refers to “any act of gender-based violence that results in or is likely to result in physical, sexual, and mental harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts as coercion” (Renzetti and Bergen 32).

Domestic violence against women is one of the oldest social and public health problems in the history of humanity. It began in the traditional society when women were subordinated to men. The culture of most communities in the pre-modern world considered women to be equal to children. Besides, most communities viewed women as men’s properties (Latchana 17).

As a result, women had very limited rights in the society. Men influenced nearly all aspects of women’s lives including their participation in economic activities, leadership, and social relationships such as marriage. This led to various forms of violence against women such as sexual harassment, deprivation of liberty, and physical abuse. For instance, battering was considered as a means of punishing errant women rather than a form of physical abuse. In the 1870s, men began to change their perception of women (McGee 34).

In the United States, the courts abolished the common-law principle that allowed men to punish their wives. Similarly, men’s right to punish their wives was abolished in the United Kingdom in 1891. The government and the civil society in virtually all countries are constantly campaigning against domestic violence against women. However, the prevalence of the problem is still very high.

The symptoms of domestic violence include insulting or calling a female spouse names, and preventing them from going to work or visiting their families. Other symptoms include inflicting physical pain, controlling how women expend their money, forcing women to have sex, and threatening them with violence. The risk factors associated with domestic violence against women include “low levels of income, witnessing family violence, antisocial personality disorder, and uncontrolled use of alcohol” (WHO).

true Women Business and the Law aims to examine legal differentiations on the basis of gender in 143 of the world's economies Women Business and the Law tracks governments' actions to expand economic opportunities for women across six key areas: accessing institutions, using property, getting a job, providing incentives to work, building credit, and going to court. The report uncovers legal differentiations for women and married versus unmarried women, such as being able to register a business, open a bank account, and work at night. These issues are of fundamental importance. When, because of tradition, social taboos, or simple prejudice, half of the world's population is prevented from making its contribution to the life of a nation, the economy will suffer. The empirical evidence does suggest that slowly but surely governments are making progress in expanding opportunities for women. It is our hope that data presented in Women Business and the Law will both facilitate research on linkages between legal differentiation and outcomes for women and promote better informed policy choices on what governments can do to expand opportunities for women. The Urban Fabric of Crime and Fear Vania Ceccato, 2012-06-21 How does the city's urban fabric relate to crime and fear, and how is that fabric affected by crime and fear? Does the urban environment affect one's decision to commit an offence? Is there a victimisation-related inequality within cities? How do crime and fear interrelate to inequality and segregation in cities of developing countries? What are the challenges to planning cities which are both safe and sustainable? This book searches for answers to these questions in the nature of the city, particularly in the social interactions that take place in urban space, distinctively guided by different land uses and people's activities. In other words, the book deals with the urban fabric of crime and fear. The novelty of the book is to place safety and security issues on the urban scale by 1) showing links between urban structure and crime and fear, 2) illustrating how different disciplines deal with urban vulnerability to and fear of crime, 3) including concrete examples of issues and challenges found in European and North American cities, and without being too extensive, also in cities of the Global South. Queering Paradigms Burkhard Scherer, 2009 This book brings together original peer-reviewed research providing new perspectives on the status quo and challenges for the future of Queer Theory, Queer Studies. Drawing inspiration from the conference in Queer Studies that was held at Canterbury Christ Church University in February and March 2009, the chapters offer analyses and insights into changing academic and public discourses on sexual and gender normativities within a wide multi- and trans-disciplinary scope. Transcending the binary axis of homo vs. heterosexuality, the book analyzes queries and challenges multiple overt and hidden heteronormative and gender binarist assumptions in six larger areas: paradigmatic discourses in academia and public life are discussed; Queered Identities; Queer Politics; Queering Public Discourses; Queering the Classroom; Pop Queer; and Queer Readings. The contributing authors represent the wide spectrum of scholarship engaged with Queer Theory, including political and social science, philosophy, history, literary criticism, cultural studies, education, psychology, and legal studies. They conversely and discursively contribute to the evaluation, reformulation, and if appropriate, reclaiming of academic approaches in Queer Studies.
