Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-statistic	p-value
Age of the head of household	0.05	0.02	2.50	0.01
Gender of the head of household (Male = 1, Female = 0)	-0.10	0.03	-3.33	0.00
Constant	1.50	0.10	15.00	0.00

The regression results indicate that the number of children in the household is positively related to the age of the head of household and negatively related to the gender of the head of household. Specifically, for every one-year increase in the age of the head of household, the number of children in the household increases by 0.05, holding all other variables constant. Conversely, for every one-unit increase in the gender variable (from female to male), the number of children in the household decreases by 0.10, holding all other variables constant.

Independent Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-Statistic
Constant	2.50	0.50	5.00
Age	0.10	0.02	5.00
Gender	0.05	0.03	1.67
Marital Status	0.15	0.04	3.75

Urban	0.05	0.03	1.67
Rural	0.05	0.03	1.67
Adjusted R-squared	0.15

The results indicate that the model explains 15% of the variance in the number of children in the household. The independent variables that are statistically significant at the 5% level are Age, Marital Status, and Income. The coefficient for Age is positive, suggesting that older individuals tend to have more children. The coefficient for Marital Status is also positive, indicating that married individuals have more children than unmarried individuals. The coefficient for Income is positive, suggesting that higher income is associated with a higher number of children.
