Directions: The Federalist Papers were written by James Madison, John Jay, and Alexander Hamilton in order to encourage public and political support throughout the United States for the Constitution and the new federal government. Read the passages from several sections of the Federalist Papers and answer the following questions. Annotate! Highlight words you do not understand. (we will review as a class)

Passage 1: Excerpts from Federalist 10, James Madison- "Factions"

AMONG the numerous advantages promised by a well-constructed Union, none deserves to be more accurately developed than its tendency to break and control the violence of faction. The friend of popular governments never finds himself so much alarmed for their character and fate, as when he contemplates their propensity to this dangerous vice... Complaints are everywhere heard from our most considerate and virtuous citizens, equally the friends of public and private faith, and of public and personal liberty that our governments are too unstable, that the public good is disregarded in the conflicts of rival parties, and that measures are too often decided, not according to the rules of justice and the rights of the minor party but by the superior force of an interested and overbearing majority...

By a faction, I understand a number of citizens, whether amounting to a majority or a minority of the whole, who are united and actuated by some common impulse of passion, or of interest, adverse to the rights of other citizens, or to the permanent and aggregate interests of the community. There are two methods of curing the mischiefs of faction: the one, by removing its causes, the other, by controlling its effects.

There are again two methods of removing the causes of faction: the one, by destroying the liberty which is essential to its existence; the other, by giving to every citizen the same opinions, the same passions, and the same interests.

Propensity: (noun) an inclination or natural tendency to behave in a particular way.

Overbearing: (adjective) overwhelmingly or arrogantly dominating.

Adverse: (adjective) harmful; unfavorable.

Actuated: (verb) - cause (someone) to act in a particular way; motivate.

Aggregate: (noun) a whole formed by combining several (typically disparate) elements.
