

FAREWELL SPEECH

Good morning respected Chairman Sir, Director Ma'am, Principal Ma'am, our Chief Guest and all our dear parents.

Today I am a little surprised at how a person like me, a person who has loved each and every inch of this stage, be so hesitant to come up here and speak. What I am about to do is absolutely final. I am here to deliver my farewell speech. It has taken a little time for this fact to dawn on me. The fact that this speech has to sum up just one thought: SNEH, I'm going to miss you. It has left my heart wrenched. No matter what I say in the next few minutes, nothing will sum up even a fraction of how much I owe this institution.

I witnessed here what were possibly the darkest days of my life. I couldn't speak a single sentence in English without fumbling. I knew I had the ability to do a lot of other things but somehow I was being rejected because of my speech impediment. It was a dark cloud that refused to budge. No matter what I did, how much I tried, the more I tried to prove myself, the more I fumbled. I blamed everybody around me for it. I fooled myself, lied myself. People laughed at me and they poked fun at me.
