Superminds Thomas W. Malone,2018-05-15 From the founding director of the MIT Center for Collective Intelligence comes a fascinating look at the remarkable capacity for intelligence exhibited by groups of people and computers working together If you re like most people you probably believe that humans are the most intelligent animals on our planet But there s another kind of entity that can be far smarter groups of people In this groundbreaking book Thomas Malone the founding director of the MIT Center for Collective Intelligence shows how groups of people working together in superminds like hierarchies markets democracies and communities have been responsible for almost all human achievements in business government science and beyond And these collectively intelligent human groups are about to get much smarter Using dozens of striking examples and case studies Malone shows how computers can help create more intelligent superminds simply by connecting humans to one another in a variety of rich new ways And although it will probably happen more gradually than many people expect artificially intelligent computers will amplify the power of these superminds by doing increasingly complex kinds of thinking Together these changes will have far reaching implications for everything from the way we buy groceries and plan business strategies to how we respond to climate change and even for democracy itself By understanding how these collectively intelligent groups work we can learn how to harness their genius to achieve our human goals Drawing on cutting edge science and insights from a remarkable range of disciplines Superminds articulates a bold and utterly fascinating picture of the future that will change the ways you work and live both with other people and with computers     Educating Marginalized Communities in East and Southeast Asia Khun Eng Kuah, Jason Eng Thye Tan, 2016-11-25 Despite the enshrinement by the United Nations in 1948 of education as a universal human right and despite the ideals espoused in the Education for All declaration in Dakar in 1990 it is patently clear that these ideals remain far from realized for a substantial portion of humankind Especially at risk are vulnerable segments of society such as women migrants refugees rural populations ethnic minorities and the financially disadvantaged This book centres on efforts to provide education to these marginalized populations in the East and Southeast Asian region Of particular interest are questions of financing and control As various governments have struggled to manage the escalating costs of building schools training teachers and educating students the topic of public private partnerships in educational provision has assumed growing importance The seven chapters presented here highlight a variety of partnerships among state civil society and non government organisations NGOs
