

Before Using the Navigation System

WARNING

Read this manual first

Read this manual carefully before using the navigation system. We are not liable for accidents or other problems resulting from failure to follow the instructions in this manual.

Follow all road signs and traffic rules

When driving using guidance from the navigation system, be sure to follow the actual road signs and traffic regulations. If road signs and traffic regulations are changed, the data on the SD card may be out of date. Also, the data on the map SD card does not take into account factors such as weather, time zones, and occurrences such as differences in congestion situations and temporary road closures due to construction work. Always give precedence to road signs and traffic rules over instructions from the navigation system.

Not following the road signs and traffic rules could lead to injury or traffic violations.

Drive safely

- Before following instructions from the navigation system (changing lanes and so on), check that you can carry out the maneuver safely given the current traffic conditions. Always put safety first before following any instructions.
- Do not watch the navigation screen while driving. Ignoring surrounding traffic could lead to an accident. If you need to look at the screen while driving, make sure you only glance at the screen.
- You should stop the vehicle in a safe place before operating the navigation system. For safety's sake, some of the navigation system's buttons and functions cannot be used unless the vehicle is stationary.
- When you need to look at the navigation screen, do so for the shortest time possible. Looking away from the road for too long could lead to an accident.
- Make sure this system is installed in a position legally allowed in the country where you intend to use it. Some countries and regions do not allow video screens to be installed within the driver's line of sight.
