Grade 6 Reading Comprehension Worksheet

Clever Grethel

Read the story. Then answer the questions.

There was once a cook called Grethel, she would take some of the best of whatever she was cooking, "for," said she, "a cook must know how things taste." Now one day her master said to her, "Grethel, I expect a guest this evening; you make ready a pair of fowls." "Certainly, sir, I will," answered Grethel. So she killed the fowls, cleaned them, and then, as evening drew near, placed them before the fire to roast. And they were nearly done, but the guest had not come. Then she went and put the fowls down to the fire again, and, basting them with butter. Now they began to smell so good that Grethel licked her fingers, "Well, the fowls are good. One of the wings is burning!" she cried, "I had better eat it and get it out of the way." So she cut it off and ate it up, and it tasted good, and then she thought, "I had better cut off the other too." She said, "Why not I make myself happy, with a good meal." So she ate up one of the fowls with great relish and then the second fowl went the way of the first. Just as she was in the middle of it the master came back. "Grethel," cried he, "The guest is coming!" "It will soon be ready." She answered. The master went to see that the table was properly laid, and, taking the great carving knife with which he meant to carve the fowls, he sharpened it upon the step. The guest came, knocking at the front door. When Grethel saw the guest she put her finger on her lip saying, "Hush! Make haste you can out of this, he asked you to come to supper, but he really means to cut off your ears! Just listen how he is sharpening his knife!" The guest, hearing the noise of the sharpening, made off as fast as he could go. Grethel ran screaming to her master. "The guest has run away with my pair of fowls that I had just dished up." "Grethel, What do you mean?" asked he. Then he called out to him to stop, and then he ran after him, the knife still in his hand, crying out, and "Only one! only one!" meaning that the guest should let him have one of the fowls and not take both, but the guest thought he meant to have only one of his ears, and he ran so much the faster that he might get home with both of them safe.

Answer each question.

1. How did Grethel get ready a pair of fowls?
2. Did the guest come on time and what did Grethel do?
3. How many fowls did she eat?
4. Why the master did sharpen the knife?
5. What did Grethel say when the guest come?
6. Why the master did run after the guest and what did the guest think?

The Teaching Revolution William N. Bender, Laura Waller, 2011-08-15 Imagine the school of the future The Teaching Revolution challenges educators to imagine schools the way they should be with a big picture vision that includes student driven curricula interconnectivity and targeted responsiveness to students individual needs The authors provide a futuristic and provocative discussion on combining three major instructional innovations RTI technology and differentiation Drawing on the growing 21st century skills movement the text engagingly weaves these three areas into a vision for school transformation that includes Utilizing mobile technologies Web based instruction and social media RTI that benefits all students and whole schools in their improvement efforts Project based learning focused on answering real world questions The symbiosis of RTI technology and differentiated instruction is so impactful that it will soon dramatically reform teaching The Teaching Revolution will dare you to dream and guide you through the process of transforming education to become all that you can imagine

Restoring Opportunity Greg J. Duncan, Richard J. Murnane, 2014-01-01 In this landmark volume Greg J Duncan and Richard J Murnane lay out a meticulously researched case showing how in a time of spiraling inequality strategically targeted interventions and supports can help schools significantly improve the life chances of low income children The authors offer a brilliant synthesis of recent research on inequality and its effects on families children and schools They describe the interplay of social and economic factors that has made it increasingly hard for schools to counteract the effects of inequality and that has created a widening wedge between low and high income students Restoring Opportunity provides detailed portraits of proven initiatives that are transforming the lives of low income children from prekindergarten through high school All of these programs are research tested and have demonstrated sustained effectiveness over time and at significant scale Together they offer a powerful vision of what good instruction in effective schools can look like The authors conclude by outlining the elements of a new agenda for education reform Restoring Opportunity is a crowning contribution from these two leading economists in the field of education and a passionate call to action on behalf of the young people on whom our nation s future depends Copublished with the Russell Sage Foundation
