Interactive IR User Study Design, Evaluation, and Reporting Jiqun Liu,Chirag Shah,2022-05-31 Since user study design has been widely applied in search interactions and information retrieval IR systems evaluation studies a deep reflection and meta evaluation of interactive IR IIR user studies is critical for sharpening the instruments of IIR research and improving the reliability and validity of the conclusions drawn from IIR user studies To this end we developed a faceted framework for supporting user study design reporting and evaluation based on a systematic review of the state of the art IIR research papers recently published in several top IR venues n 462 Within the framework we identify three major types of research focuses extract and summarize facet values from specific cases and highlight the under reported user study components which may significantly affect the results of research Then we employ the faceted framework in evaluating a series of IIR user studies against their respective research questions and explain the roles and impacts of the underlying connections and collaborations among different facet values Through bridging diverse combinations of facet values with the study design decisions made for addressing research problems the faceted framework can shed light on IIR user study design reporting and evaluation practices and help students and young researchers design and assess their own studies Civil Defense Aspects of the Three Mile Island Nuclear Accident United States. Weisberg,2011-01-06 A one of a kind resource on identifying and dealing with bias in statistical research on causal effects Do cell phones cause cancer Can a new curriculum increase student achievement Determining what the real causes of such problems are and how powerful their effects may be are central issues in research across various fields of study Some researchers are highly skeptical of drawing causal conclusions except in tightly controlled randomized experiments while others discount the threats posed by different sources of bias even in less rigorous observational studies Bias and Causation presents a complete treatment of the subject organizing and clarifying the diverse types of biases into a conceptual framework The book treats various sources of bias in comparative studies both randomized and observational and offers guidance on how they should be addressed by researchers Utilizing a relatively simple mathematical approach the author develops a theory of bias that outlines the essential nature of the problem and identifies the various sources of bias that are encountered in modern research The book begins with an introduction to the study of causal inference and the related concepts and terminology Next an overview is provided of the methodological issues at the core of the difficulties posed by bias Subsequent chapters explain the concepts of selection bias confounding intermediate causal factors and information bias along with the distortion of a causal effect that can result when the exposure and or the outcome is measured with error The book concludes with a new classification of twenty general sources of bias and practical advice on how mathematical modeling and expert judgment can be combined to achieve the most credible causal conclusions Throughout the book examples from the fields of medicine public policy and education are incorporated into the presentation of various topics In addition six detailed case studies illustrate concrete examples of the significance of biases in everyday research Requiring only a basic understanding of statistics and probability theory Bias and Causation is an excellent supplement for courses on research methods and applied statistics at the upper undergraduate and graduate level It is also a valuable reference for practicing researchers and methodologists in various fields of study who work with statistical data This book was selected as the 2011 Ziegel Prize Winner in Technometrics for the best book reviewed by the journal It is also the winner of the 2010 PROSE Award for Mathematics from The American Publishers Awards for Professional and Scholarly Excellence Resources in Education ,1997 Literary Bioethics Maren Tova Linett,2020-07-14 Uses literature to understand and remake our ethics regarding nonhuman animals old human beings disabled human beings and cloned posthumans Literary Bioethics argues for literature as an untapped and essential site for the exploration of bioethics Novels Maren Tova Linett argues present vividly imagined worlds in which certain values hold sway casting new light onto those values and the more plausible and well rendered readers find these imagined worlds the more thoroughly we can evaluate the justice of those values In an innovative set of readings Linett thinks through the ethics of animal experimentation in H G Wells s The Island of Doctor Moreau explores the elimination of aging in Aldous Huxley s Brave New World considers the valuation of disabled lives in Flannery O Connor s The Violent Bear It Away and questions the principles of humane farming through reading Kazuo Ishiguro s Never Let Me Go By analyzing novels published at widely spaced intervals over the span of a century Linett offers snapshots of how we confront questions of value In some cases the fictions are swayed by dominant devaluations of nonnormative or nonhuman lives while in other cases they confirm the value of such lives by resisting instrumental views of their worth views that influence explicitly or implicitly many contemporary bioethical discussions especially about the value of disabled and nonhuman lives Literary Bioethics grapples with the most fundamental questions of how we value different kinds of lives and questions what those in power ought to be permitted to do with those lives as we gain unprecedented levels of technological prowess Study Guide for Psychology
