Interactive IR User Study Design, Evaluation, and Reporting Jiqun Liu,Chirag Shah,2022-05-31 Since user study design has been widely applied in search interactions and information retrieval IR systems evaluation studies a deep reflection and meta evaluation of interactive IR IIR user studies is critical for sharpening the instruments of IIR research and improving the reliability and validity of the conclusions drawn from IIR user studies To this end we developed a faceted framework for supporting user study design reporting and evaluation based on a systematic review of the state of the art IIR research papers recently published in several top IR venues n 462 Within the framework we identify three major types of research focuses extract and summarize facet values from specific cases and highlight the under reported user study components which may significantly affect the results of research Then we employ the faceted framework in evaluating a series of IIR user studies against their respective research questions and explain the roles and impacts of the underlying connections and collaborations among different facet values Through bridging diverse combinations of facet values with the study design decisions made for addressing research problems the faceted framework can shed light on IIR user study design reporting and evaluation practices and help students and young researchers design and assess their own studies

Resources in Education ,1997 Research in Education ,1974 The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies, Language, and Education, Vol. 2 Marc Marschark,Patricia Elizabeth Spencer,2010-06-28 Oxford Handbooks offer authoritative and up to date reviews of original research in a particular subject area Specially commissioned chapters from leading figures in the discipline give critical examinations of the progress and direction of debates as well as a foundation for future research Oxford Handbooks provide scholars and graduate students with compelling new perspectives upon a wide range of subjects in the humanities social sciences and sciences The adage Those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it is a powerful one for parents teachers and other professionals involved with or interested in deaf individuals or the Deaf community Myths grown from ignorance have long dogged the field and faulty assumptions and overgeneralizations have persisted despite contrary evidence A study of the history of deaf education reveals patterns that have affected educational policy and legislation for deaf people around the world these patterns are related to several themes critical to the chapters of this volume One such theme is the importance of parental involvement in raising and educating deaf children Another relates to how Deaf people have taken an increasingly greater role in influencing their own futures and places in society In published histories we see the longstanding conflicts through the centuries that pertain to sign language and spoken communication philosophies as well as the contributions of the individuals who advocated alternative strategies for teaching deaf children More recently investigators have recognized the need for a diverse approach to language and language learning Advances in technology cognitive science linguistics and the social sciences have alternately led and followed changes in theory and practice resulting in a changing landscape for deaf and hard of hearing individuals and those connected to them This second volume of the The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies Language and Education 2003 picks up where that first landmark volume left off describing those advances and offering readers the opportunity to understand the current status of research in the field while recognizing the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead In Volume 2 an international group of contributing experts provide state of the art summaries intended for students practitioners and researchers Not only does it describe where we are it helps to chart courses for the future Kealahou Parkway, Mamalahou Highway to Queen Kaahumanu Highway, North Kona ,1998
