anywhere Crawford and Mathews's initial inquiries eventually grew into a major research study involving more than 10 000 consumers interviews with executives from scores of leading companies around the world and dozens of international client engagements Their conclusion Most companies priding themselves on how well they know their customers aren't really listening to them at all Consumers are fed up with all the fuss about world class performance and excellence What they are aggressively demanding is recognition respect trust fairness and honesty Believing that they are still in a position to dictate the terms of commercial engagement businesses have bought into the myth of excellence the clearly false and destructive theory that a company ought to be great at everything it does that is all the components of every commercial transaction price product access experience and service This is always a mistake because the predictable outcome is that the company ends up world class at nothing not well differentiated and therefore not thought of by consumers at the moment of need Instead Crawford and Mathews suggest that companies engage in Consumer Relevancy a strategy of dominating in one element of a transaction differentiating on a second and being at industry par i e average on the remaining three It's not necessary for businesses to equally invest time and money on all five attributes and their customers don't want them to Imagine the confusion if Tiffany Co started offering deep discounts on diamonds and McDonald's began selling free range chicken and tofu The Myth of Excellence provides a blueprint for companies seeking to offer values based products and services and shows how to realize the commercial opportunities that exist just beyond their current grasp opportunities to reduce operating costs boost bottom line profitability and most important begin to engage in a meaningful dialogue with customers
