

AP Biology Chapter 16 Section 2 Worksheet

1. What inspired Watson and Crick and led to their discovery of the double helix.
2. Explain what is meant by a template where DNA is concerned.
3. Explain the basic process behind replication of DNA.
4. Explain what is meant by semiconservative replication.
5. Explain Meselson and Stahl's work with regard to the following models:
  - conservative model
  - dispersive model
  - semiconservative model
6. How long does it take e. coli's DNA to copy itself and how many base pairs is that? How long and how many in humans?
7. Explain what an origin of replication is. What is it in bacteria?
8. How does this process happen in bacteria?
9. How are origins of replication different in eukaryotic cells?
10. Explain the structure of an origin site in eukaryotic cells.
11. Explain the function of DNA polymerases.
12. Explain the beginning process of replication and what polymerase does in this process.
13. Explain what a nucleoside triphosphate is and its structure.
14. Explain what pyrophosphate is and how it is formed.
15. Explain what drives the polymerization of a nucleotide to a new strand of DNA.
16. Explain the structure of the 3 prime and 5 prime ends of a DNA strand.
17. Now explain what the term antiparallel means.
18. Explain how nucleotides are added to a growing DNA strand.
19. Contrast that to how the strand actually grows longer.
20. What problem does this difference create?
21. Explain the function of the leading strand.
22. Now explain what a lagging strand is.
23. Explain what an Okazaki fragment is.
24. Explain the function of DNA ligase.
25. Can DNA polymerases initiate synthesis of a polynucleotide? Explain
26. Explain what a primer is, its structure and it's main function.
27. Explain the function of primase.
28. What do the leading and lagging strand require at the replication fork that can avoid problems in the replication process?
29. How long can DNA polymerase continue to add new nucleotides?
30. What happens to the primers before ligase joins the new fragments?
31. Explain the function of the following proteins:
  - helicases
  - single-strand binding proteins
32. Do polymerases actually move along a DNA strand? Explain
33. Explain the function of polymerases in the detection of mistakes in reading DNA nucleotides.
34. Explain what happens when a mistake occurs.
35. Give 3 environmental factors that can alter the reading accuracy of nucleotides.

Paleoclimatology Colin P. Summerhayes, 2020-06-10 Life on our planet depends upon having a climate that changes within narrow limits not too hot for the oceans to boil away nor too cold for the planet to freeze over Over the past billion years Earth's average temperature has stayed close to 14-15°C oscillating between warm greenhouse states and cold icehouse states We live with variation but a variation with limits Paleoclimatology is the science of understanding and explaining those variations those limits and the forces that control them Without that understanding we will not be able to foresee future change accurately as our population grows Our impact on the planet is now equal to a geological force such that many geologists now see us as living in a new geological era the Anthropocene Paleoclimatology describes Earth's passage through the greenhouse and icehouse worlds of the past 800 million years including the glaciations of Snowball Earth in a world that was then free of land plants It describes the operation of the Earth's thermostat which keeps the planet fit for life and its control by interactions between greenhouse gases land plants chemical weathering continental motions volcanic activity orbital change and solar variability It explains how we arrived at our current understanding of the climate system by reviewing the contributions of scientists since the mid 1700s showing how their ideas were modified as science progressed And it includes reflections based on the author's involvement in palaeoclimatic research The book will transform debate and set the agenda for the next generation of thought about future climate change It will be an invaluable course reference for undergraduate and postgraduate students in geology climatology oceanography and the history of science A real tour de force An outstanding summary not only of the science and what needs to be done but also the challenges that are a consequence of psychological and cultural baggage that threatens not only the survival of our own species but the many others we are eliminating as well Peter Barrett Emeritus Professor of Geology Antarctic Research Centre Victoria University of Wellington New Zealand What a remarkable and wonderful synthesis it will be a wonderful source of paleoclimate information and insights Christopher R Scotese Professor Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences Northwestern University Evanston IL USA

Complex Engineering Service Systems Irene Ng, Glenn Parry, Peter Wild, Duncan McFarlane, Paul Tasker, 2011-07-02 For manufacturers of complex engineering equipment the focus on service and achieving outcomes for customers is the key to growth Yet the capability to provide service for complex engineered products is less understood Taking a trans disciplinary approach Complex Engineering Service Systems covers various aspects of service in complex engineering systems with perspectives from engineering management design operations research strategy marketing and operations management that are relevant to different disciplines organisation functions and geographic locations The focus is on the many facets of complex engineering service systems around a core integrative framework of three value transformations that of material equipment information and people Complex Engineering Service Systems is the outcome of the EPSRC BAE Systems S4T Service Support Solutions Strategy and Transition research programme of 10 universities and 27 researchers which examined how high value manufacturers of complex engineering products adapt to a multi partnered environment to design and deliver value in a service system Complex Engineering Service Systems aims to be the main source of knowledge for academics and professionals in the research and practice of contracting managing designing leading and delivering complex engineering service systems The book takes a value based approach to integrating equipment and human factors into a total service provision In doing so it aims to advance the field of
