Department for International Development annual report and resource accounts 2010-11 and business plan 2011-15 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: International Development Committee,2012-03-09 While DFID s total budget is increasing the Department will both restrict operating costs to 2% by 2014 15 and reduce its administrative costs by a third in real terms from 128 million in 2010 11 to 94 million by 2014 15 This report warns that capping operational costs and staff numbers may not reduce overall costs or improve effective delivery of development assistance The International Development Committee also raises concerns that cost pressures are driving DFID to use consultants to deliver its programmes rather than in house expertise The Department spends 450 million on technical cooperation per year Much of this is good work yet it was unclear exactly what this money was spent on or how effective it was and the extent to which external providers were used DFID needs to improve its assessment of which projects and services it should use consultants for and assess more carefully the use of consultants to manage the Department s own delivery programmes In its efforts to reduce administrative spending DFID might be exporting these costs to other organisations including NGOs and multilateral aid organisations with higher real administration costs The Department should assess the best and most effective way to deliver development assistance as it may be able to do it more cheaply and effectively than external organisations The report recommends that the Department improves its tracking of and reporting on the total cost of administering its aid programme with the aim of quantifying how much aid actually ends
