Stereotactic Techniques in Clinical Neurosurgery D. Andries Bosch, 2012-12-06 Various textbooks on stereotactic neurosurgery have been published during the last few years Riechert 1980 Schaltenbrand and Walker 1982 Spiegel 1982 all of them dealing with functional stereo tactics as the major subject in the field Diagnostic and therapeutic stereotactic interventions are only briefly described whereas localization techniques are not yet mentioned Since 1980 however an increasing number of reports has been published on CT guided and computer monitored stereotactic performances which enable the surgeon to combine diagnostic and therapeutic efforts in one session With recent progress in scanning techniques including high resolution CT NMR and PET imaging of the brain it has become possible to study and localize any brain area of interest With the concomitant advances in computer technology 3 dimensional reconstruction of deep seated lesions in stereotactic space is possible and the way is open for combined surgery with stereotactic precision and computer guided open resection This type of open surgery in stereotactic space is already being developed in some centers with the aid of microsurgical fiberoptic and laser beam instrumentation With these advances stereotactic techniques will rapidly become integrated into clinical neurosurgery Stereotactics has become a methodology which enables the surgeon to attack deep seated and subcortical small tumors Neurosurgeons may abandon therapeutic nihilism still frequently seen in glioma treatment in the near future when stereotactic resection will be feasible and remaining tumor cells may be killed by adjuvant treatment modalities still in development

Radionics and Life Force Technologies Martin K. Ettington, Radionics is the term for machines which manipulate life forces This is often for healing or increasing psychic perceptions The Author is an engineer and has many decades of experience with the paranormal and well as time learning and experimenting with radionics devices from the 1970s While radionics devices are often considered pseudoscience those opinions don't take into account the sensitivities of individuals who have incredible paranormal and healing abilities In my first year of engineering school at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy New York I met a man who became my mentor in the Paranormal and other things too This was in 1973 I learned to meditate and how to open my crown chakra to take in vital forces which allowed me to do many things including healing others In addition I also met another middle aged guy at a Psychic Fair in Saratoga Springs New York He was a researcher in the arcane field of Kirlian Photography In this book the history of radionics is discussed some of the major influencers on that history how these devices are used for healing and even some plans for building radionics devices My hope is that this book will give you a good grounding in radionics to learn to use it productively for your own efforts

Tumor Ablation Eric van Sonnenberg, William McMullen, Luigi Solbiati, 2008-09-08 There is an enormous sense of excitement in the communities of cancer research and cancer care as we move into the middle third of the first decade of the 21st century For the first time there is a true sense of confidence that the tools provided by the human genome project will enable cancer researchers to crack the code of genomic abnormalities that allow tumor cells to live within the body and provide highly specific virtually non toxic therapies for the eradication or at least firm control of human cancers There is also good reason to hope that these same lines of inquiry will yield better tests for screening early detection and prevention of progression beyond curability While these developments provide a legitimate basis for much optimism many patients will continue to develop cancers and suffer from their debilitating effects even as research moves ahead For these individuals it is imperative that the cancer field make the best possible use of the tools available to provide present day cancer patients with the best chances for cure effective palliation or at the very least relief from symptoms caused by acute intercurrent complications of cancer A modality that has emerged as a very useful approach to at least some of these goals is tumor ablation by the use of physical or physiochemical approaches

Progress in Catheter Ablation Liong Bing Liem, Eugene Downar, 2013-11-11 Catheter ablation is widely accepted as an effective and safe form of therapy for cardiac arrhythmia In many instances this curative procedure is considered as the first line of therapy if not the ultimate treatment of choice With the use of radiofrequency RF modality which has revolutionized the technology from a barotraumatic potentially injurious procedure using high voltage direct current DC shock to a safe and relatively painless one catheter ablation procedure now carries a very low risk and is extremely effective for certain types of arrhythmia Its efficacy rate in curing supraventricular tachycardia involving an accessory pathway or dual atrioventricular nodal pathways has been near perfect and its application for certain types of atrial and ventricular arrhythmia have also been very satisfactory However conventional RF ablation has several well known limitations most notably is its ability to only produce relatively small point lesions rendering it effective only for an arrhythmia with a small and or a superficial target It was soon recognized that the technology would not likely to have significant utility in arrhythmia with a more widespread target such as atrial fibrillation or those which involve scarred and deep myocardial tissue such as ventricular tachycardia

Indeed the application of conventional RF technology in these complex but common arrhythmia has yielded unsatisfactory results

Physical Aspects of Stereotactic Radiosurgery M.H. Phillips, 2013-06-29

When I first proposed this book one of the hopes was that it would be the stage upon which would be conducted a quiet well reasoned discussion of the various techniques of stereotactic radio surgery At that time there was quite a bit of rancorous debate that tended to obscure the scientific and medical merits of each of the separate methods At the present time I am happy to report that the field of stereotactic radiosurgery is much less riven by such inappropriate posturing The field has taken many steps towards maturity both technically and medically In the course of this maturation process there have been many grandiose plans and speeches made on behalf of stereotactic radiosurgery Inevitably the reality will not live up to the hype but such is the natural course of development in these sorts of matters However even though events may not match our hopes we should keep in mind the words of Herbert Parker Recognizing that new modalities for the treatment of cancer do not stand much chance of revolutionary success nevertheless he quite correctly pointed out that with any type of radiation the margin between success and failure is small If the chance of success is a little greater this might well be classed as a great advance Mark H
