Tijerds, Hils 10 - Identidades personales y públicas, página 288

¿Monolingüismo, bilingüismo o plurilingüismo? - Oímos que todo el mundo debe aprender inglés y por eso no hace falta aprender otros idiomas. ¿Hay valor de mantener las lenguas maternas de nuestras familias?

You are going to write a persuasive essay. In a persuasive essay you attempt to get the reader to agree with your point of view. You will write at least 275 words in Spanish. This paper must be handwritten.

You must cite your sources throughout your research paper and also at the end of it. You must include at least three written sources, such as online articles, and/or articles found in our textbook, Lección. Use sources that are reputable, that have a good reputation, and that are first editions.

You must include a word count at the end of your research paper.

Spelling is important! If you don't know how to spell a word, then please look it up in a dictionary. You must include accents.

How you will be graded - See the rubric included in this packet.

1. Your Spanish writing ability (grammar, spelling, and accents)
 2. The content of your essay
 3. Following directions - doing everything that I asked you to do.
- (I will also be giving you credit along the way for doing parts of the paper - for example, for writing the rough draft.)

Do your own work. Obviously you may not copy anything from a book or from the Internet, unless you cite it. Also, no one may help you with this paper unless it is me, Mr. Coleman. No native speakers, tutors, nor parents may give you any help. I want to know what you know. I want to see your work. I want to hear your voice when I read your paper.

Instructional Approach
The inquiry lasted four weeks and was divided into two equal phases The first phase was completed prior to winter vacation in December the second phase was completed in January Students prepared for and participated in debates as a means of showing them how an effective argument is created The debates targeted two issues the drug trafficking problem in Mexico and the controversy surrounding immigration and amnesty Students then participated in scaffolded activities to explore how to write argumentative essays These activities included class analysis of argument structure in their peers essays the use of graphic organizers and structured peer editing workshops

Data Gathering
Data collection included a baseline and outcome quick write the first drafts and the final essays turned in by the students as the primary achievement data Students also completed surveys which asked them to specify their degree of confidence while writing in English and Spanish Finally observations were taken during student work days in preparation for the debate and peer editing workshops The observation data were behavior notes taken every 10 minutes examining a student's level of engagement on the task at hand

Findings and Conclusions
Comparisons of the baseline and outcome data indicate that the majority of students had a much better understanding of the structure and content of an argumentative essay after the intervention The majority of students 54% wrote more in the outcome data essays than in the baseline data essays Furthermore 85% of students included some sort of representation of the other side in their second essay A rebuttal is a key component of an effective argument which zero students included on their first essay The findings of the intervention achievement data suggests that scaffolding peer editing and revising stabilize and standardize the essays turned in For example although 42% of students wrote less in regards to the situated understandings of immigrant and minority children's literacy learning experiences embedded in the social and cultural fabrics of their everyday lives outside school. This volume of research meets this important need in the field. It not only focuses on the complexity of literacy learning in diverse home contexts but also examines how literacy is practiced and lived in multiple ways within families of various backgrounds including those of Asian, African, and African American, Hispanic, White, European, and mixed heritages. In addition, it explores how these various culturally embedded home practices will inform school education and policy making in a larger socio-political context. The book makes an original and significant contribution to the fields of literacy education and school-home and community partnerships. Since immigrant and minority families' literacy activities and the cultural contexts of their practices at home are not readily accessible to school personnel, program developers, policy makers, or even researchers and educators, this book will serve as an important resource for teachers, practitioners, undergraduate and graduate students, teacher educators, and university researchers who are in the fields of literacy education, family literacy, and new literacy studies, minority and/or immigrant education, and second language education.

This collection is a comprehensive resource on conducting research in applied linguistics involving written genres that is distinctive in its coverage of a multiplicity of interdisciplinary perspectives. The volume explores the central approaches, methodologies, analyses, and tools used in conducting genre-based research, extending the traditional focus on a single framework for defining genres by explicating the major approaches that have been invoked in applied linguistics. Chapters address a mix of commonly used methodologies, e.g., case studies, ethnographic approaches, types of analyses, e.g., metadiscourse, rhetorical move, step analysis, multidimensional analysis, lexical bundles, and phrase frames, CALF measures, multimodal analysis, and studies that focus on other areas of second language (L2) teaching and learning, e.g., multilingualism, the Teaching and Learning Cycle. Taken together, the volume provides a theoretically and methodologically diverse introduction to foundational topics in genre-related research, supported by detailed discussions of the challenges and practical considerations to take into account when conducting research involving written genres. This book is a valuable resource for graduate students, faculty, and researchers in applied linguistics, particularly those working in second language acquisition, L2 writing, and genre theory and pedagogy.
