

In or out? Two sides of the great Brexit debate

DOVER MP Charlie Elphicke's revelation he will be voting to stay in the European Union, has sparked huge debate in town over the upcoming referendum. More than 700 people have taken part in our online poll, with 61 per cent wanting out, 32 per cent for "in" and seven per cent undecided. Here former Town Clerk Mike Webb explains why the UK must leave the EU and local Lib Dem Antony Hook puts forward his case for why we must remain, as both examine what it would mean for Dover...

LIB DEM ANTONY HOOK

CLOSER union began after the Second World War. Millions of people we don't and often resent.

As I moved generation of leaders, chiefly Winston Churchill, saw that to build a brighter tomorrow, we needed to work more closely.

That meant a single market to trade freely with a political structure to understand each other and answer shared problems. Better "law, law than war, war", as Churchill said.

In 1958 we look back on 51 years of peace in Europe. We built NATO, an alliance against an external threat (Russia) and the EU to prevent internal conflict.

It's not "peace in our time" but peace for all time. We must not put that at risk.

The post-war leaders also addressed the evil, wreaked on people's lives by fascism.

The basic human rights which fascism suppressed were put into a Convention on Human Rights that every EU country must uphold.

The right to life, to a fair trial, to own property, to marry, to live speech, and so on.

Peace makes prosperity an easy task.

Being "in" means British companies can sell goods anywhere in Europe without tariffs, import taxes or other barriers that used to exist.

Also, as customers we can buy things from elsewhere in Europe, giving us wider choice and cheaper household bills.

In Dover, many jobs depend on exports and imports. Those million British jobs are linked to trade with Europe. Even if we lost only five per cent or 10 per cent that would be a very deep recession. BISAC predict the pound losing 30 per cent of its value if we leave.

A free trade agreement for Britain outside the EU would take years to negotiate, could be vetoed by any of the other 27 member states and could only give us less than we have now. If we leave we will still be subject to many decisions made in Europe but not have any part in making them.

Holidays have become affordable to more Europeans. The EU deregulated airlines, making flying cheaper. It is easy to see why Sarkozy and Bynair support "in".

When I was growing up, food from 1958. It was imported with rubbish washed up from the sea coming from other countries. Now the food is free of pests and the water gives Europe's clean water standards. This is because together, as EU countries, we have made tough environmental laws for all of Europe.

Working in the law courts I see EU cooperation. Criminals who run are brought back to face justice. Information on previous convictions (trial to get the sentence right) is shared.

As EU citizens we have the right to live, study, work or retire anywhere in Europe. Two million Brits do so right now. More will in future. If we leave Europe many will have to come back. Where will they live and work?

A lot to read about people from other parts of Europe working here.

It's important for us all. They pay 50 per cent more in tax than they do on services.

Without them there would be a bigger gap in school and hospital budgets.

For young Europeans looking for work, leaving the EU would only cause deeper problems.

We need more investment in education to help young people get on.

We do not pay a lot to the EU. The website Culture and Impact put it at £120 or £100. Even £120 works out as only 50p per person per day.

If being in Europe gives one of my neighbours a job, brings one more business to Dover or shortens a conflict anywhere in the world by one day - that is 50p well spent.

FORMER TOWN CLERK MIKE WEBB

All the dust settles on his frenetic round of scuttling EU diplomacy let's stop pretending that the Prime Minister pulled a rabbit out of the hat - it was, in fact, a half-baked turkey.

With that inadequate prep, he's now trying to kid us that his team will herald a fundamental change within a reformed, forward-thinking Europe.

Remember his rewording promise to "make away", if he didn't achieve success for our previously sovereign nation?

Well, starting in the spotlight of the Euro pessimism, his words certainly buckled.

Mr Cameron's carefully choreographed performance was as artificial and fustian as the Eurovision Song Contest. His well-point achievements tell the short of his rhetoric.

The Prime Minister's "victory" leaves the UK as much under the cloak of the sclerotic, transformed EU as before. Indeed, even his modest handwork seems not certain to be implemented, as final interpretation and implementation lies with the European Court of Justice.

To be fair, even Margaret Thatcher, in her pomp, would have struggled against the massed ranks of the gang of 27.

However, no half-decent negotiator pre-shackles himself by revealing that, whatever the depth of his covered failures, he intended that Britain would remain within the autocratic, self-serving EU club.

What presents a further shocking spectacle is the overwhelming arrogance and disdain for fair play.

On the one hand, the Prime Minister suspended the collect responsibility principle, thus freeing ministers to campaign against the Government's support for continued EU membership, but then throws a flaky Henry 8th, when ministers dare to do just that.

Now, in addition, we find that civil servants are banned from helping Brexit ministers. Consequently, our unelected PM claims that it is "good for democracy" for the government machine to produce endless propaganda for the let's-stay-in herd. Further, opinion polls show that we please about his undemocratic instructions to MPs to ignore their constituency parties. We also learn that Ministers in tears of support are, in fact, being orchestrated by the EU.

All of this is disappointing, unedifying and smacks of the very authority that lives in a Europe.

In tandem, people like Theresa May, Philip Hammond, Sir David, William Hague and others who have long been approved, a principled Europeanism has fallen at the first blow.

At our local level the EU claims to be European, when to constituents that "wanton management of the European is better paid", "unemployment is rising in many nations and many people have paid the price."

He adds, concerning Brexit, we import more goods than we export, we would arguably be a benefactor.

He also admits: "When we leave, we may very well come to enjoy economic success".

However, he praises tighter border controls with France, which has led to the catastrophic Calais "Jungle" migrant camp.

Those for this or holding I membership, agreement on looking the fact that it was a Government that made the EU a magnet for economic migrants.

Also overlooked is the fact a situation that the Prime Minister promised to remedy, in which he cannot be put right, we stay in?

No, like our Prime Minister half-baked turkey, we too will be truly stuffed if we do not take to Europe opportunity to admit that enough is enough, and not repeat the dramatic and end night.

A Study of Persuasive Strategies Adopted by the Agricultural Extension Agents of Michigan State University to Disseminate New Farm Technologies to Michigan Farmers with Research Implications for Developing Countries Hyacinth Ibe Dike, 1982 Digital Smarts: A Guide to Media Literacy for the 21st-Century Family Pasquale De Marco, 2025-03-03

In today's digital age children are growing up surrounded by screens. From smartphones and tablets to video games and social media, kids are spending more time than ever before interacting with media. While media can offer many benefits such as educational opportunities, entertainment, and social connection, it also comes with a number of potential risks. Children who spend excessive time in front of screens may experience problems with their physical health, mental health, and academic performance. They may also be more likely to engage in risky behaviors such as cyberbullying and sexting.

Digital Smarts: A Guide to Media Literacy for the 21st Century Family is the essential guide for parents and educators who want to help children navigate the digital landscape safely and responsibly. This comprehensive book covers a wide range of topics, including:

- The impact of media on children's physical and mental health
- The role of media in children's development
- Strategies for teaching children media literacy skills
- Tips for setting limits on screen time
- How to talk to children about media
- Creating a media-rich learning environment

With its clear and concise writing style, Digital Smarts is an invaluable resource for anyone who wants to help children thrive in the digital age.

Reviews: A must-read for parents and educators who want to help children navigate the digital landscape safely and responsibly.

Common Sense Media: An essential guide to media literacy for the 21st-century family.

American Academy of Pediatrics: A comprehensive and practical guide to help children use media in a healthy and productive way.
