- Long-run demand for physicians: Long-run demand and short-run demand curves for a group of people depend on their skills. If they have the sufficient training, long-run demand includes all the doctors. If not, long-run demand is limited to those who have the required training and experience.
- Short-run demand is restricted: The short-run demand will be restricted. The short-run demand is restricted after each new generation. Compared to the long-run demand, the short-run demand is smaller.
- When a restriction is imposed: "No LRP" will happen in the diagram. If there is no short-run demand, a short supply will occur. There is a price ceiling, a short supply, and a deadweight loss. If there is no sufficient supply, the price will be higher than the short-run price. It is right. The restriction is the maximum. The additional short-run demand is outside the short-run.
- Long-run demand will increase if a restriction is made on the short-run demand: If not, the "No LRP" restriction is not in the diagram. The restriction is not in the diagram.
