

DNA, RNA, and Snorks

In this simulation, you will examine the DNA sequence of a fictitious organism - the Snork. Snorks were discovered on the planet Dee Enae in a distant solar system. Snorks only have one chromosome with eight genes on it. For simplicity, the gene sequences are much smaller than real gene sequences found in living organisms. Each gene has two versions (alleles) that result in a different phenotype being expressed.

Your job is to analyze the DNA sequences of the four types of Snorks and determine what traits they have and then sketch them (You can be creative here). Each group will analyze all four Snorks (one per person). For each Snork, write the DNA sequence, its complementary mRNA sequence, the amino acid sequence and the resulting phenotype. When you are finished decoding, you will draw (and color) the Snork.
