

Topic selection

- The NCG has produced a list of potential treatments and they are reviewed for their cost, prevalence, potential benefit and disease burden in order to develop an order of prioritisation

Produce a scope

- A scope is written defining the intervention, comparator, relevant doses, indication, population for review
- The scope must be in line with clinical practice and the internationally available evidence

Evidence review

- Rapid and targeted literature review from HTA assessments, economic evaluations, cost-effectiveness studies and clinical trials
- Price benchmarking exercise to determine how the price India is paying sits in relation to international prices
- Estimates of the costs of a years treatment

Recommendations on the likelihood of cost-effectiveness

- The NCG group review the evidence and make an assessment of the likelihood that the treatment would be cost-effective

Application

- Ultimately the information will go to the Guideline Development Group to hopefully be incorporated during decision making
