The Development of Past Tense Morphology in L2 Spanish M. Rafael Salaberry, 2001-02-12 This book presents an extended analysis of the development of L2 Spanish past tense morphology among L1 English speaking learners The study addresses three major questions 1 what is the developmental pattern of acquisition of past tense verbal morphology among tutored learners 2 what are the relevant factors that may account for the particular distribution of morphological endings especially at the beginning stages and 3 how does instruction affect the movement from one stage to the next The analysis provides a reassessment of the general claim of Andersen's lexical aspect hypothesis and proposes minor changes that may render the hypothesis more appropriate for especially L2 classroom learning. The study includes an overview of theoretical positions on the notion of lexical versus grammatical aspect and a comparison of the findings from previous empirical studies on the development of past tense verbal morphology among both classroom and naturalistic learners. Ecology: Teacher's ed, 2005 Language Testing in Practice

Lyle F. Bachman, Adrian S. Palmer, 1996-09-19 This book relates language testing practice to current views of communicative language teaching and testing. It builds on the theoretical background expounded in Bachman's Fundamental Considerations in Language Testing and examines the design, planning and organization of tests. The book is divided into three sections which discuss 1 objectives and expectations, the context of language testing and the abilities to be tested; 2 the process of test development including blueprints, resources, operationalization and scoring methods; and 3 ten examples which illustrate the principles discussed in Parts One and Two. US 6 from I-15 in Spanish Fork to I-70 in Green River in Utah, Wasatch, Carbon, and Emery Counties, 2005

Neuropsychological Evaluation of the Spanish Speaker Alfredo Ardila, Monica Rosselli, Antonio E. Puente, 2013-06-29 This book is the culmination of a research program conducted in Colombia during the past several years. The fundamental aim of the program was to develop neuropsychological tests for Spanish speakers, especially elderly individuals and those with limited educational attainment. The lack of norms for these populations represents a significant practical problem not only in developing countries but also in more developed countries. For example, norms are usually obtained with middle class Anglo-Saxon English speaking populations, often university students, and such norms do not usually include individuals older than 65 years. Furthermore, very few neuropsychological tests have been developed for Spanish speakers; frequently tests are translated into Spanish, often poor translations at that, but the norms used are still those obtained from English speaking populations. This volume summarizes the normative results of this research program. We anticipate that these tests and norms will be particularly useful in the neuropsychological evaluation of Spanish speakers, especially those with limited educational attainment and the elderly. The United States represents the fifth largest Spanish speaking country in the world after Mexico, Spain, Argentina, and Colombia, with over 20 million speakers. It is anticipated that by the year 2025 there will be as many Hispanics in the United States as members of all other ethnic minority groups combined. Further, about 10% of the U.S. population are considered functionally illiterate, with Hispanics representing an unusually large segment. Master the U.S. Border Patrol Exam Peterson's, 2011-03-01 Peterson's purposes has been difficult despite the evolution of our view of language to include the social perspective of co construction and the fact that such discourse is increasingly taught and assessed In this volume three sequenced studies define interaction in paired oral assessment through the verbal protocols of learners of Spanish and their assessors Assessors then scale performances from videoed test performance data resulting in the development of an evidence based rating process which includes non verbal interpersonal communication interactive listening and interactional management
