

Virtual Reality History

The concept of virtual reality has been around for decades, even though the public really only became aware of it in the early 1990s. In the mid 1950s, a cinematographer named Morton Heilig envisioned a theatre experience that would stimulate all his audiences' senses, drawing them in to the stories more effectively. He built a single user console in 1960 called the Sensorama that included a stereoscopic display, fans, odor emitters, stereo speakers and a moving chair. He also invented a head mounted television display designed to let a user watch television in 3-D. Users were passive audiences for the films, but many of Heilig's concepts would find their way into the VR field.

Philco Corporation engineers developed the first HMD in 1961, called the Headsight. The helmet included a video screen and tracking system, which the engineers linked to a closed circuit camera system. They intended the HMD for use in dangerous situations -- a user could observe a real environment remotely, adjusting the camera angle by turning his head. Bell Laboratories used a similar HMD for helicopter pilots. They linked HMDs to infrared cameras attached to the bottom of helicopters, which allowed pilots to have a clear field of view while flying in the dark.

Global Perspectives on Sustainable Library Practices Okojie, Victoria, Igbino, Magnus Osahon, 2022-10-28. Libraries as social and service-based institutions are constantly seeking innovative and effective ways to meet the needs of their users and maintain relevance amidst alternative information sources. They are constantly adjusting to meet the needs of users, contribute to the personal development of users, and align with national development. All of these have placed a burden on libraries to engage in sustainable practices both to increase their capacity to drive current developmental endeavors and to sustain future relevance. Global Perspectives on Sustainable Library Practices provides a rich and robust knowledge resource that brings together diverse sustainable library practices that will revamp library operations towards optimally meeting the current objectives of libraries as a developmental institution as well as sustaining value for future operations and service transactions. Covering topics such as access efficacy, green space development, and library service delivery, this premier reference source is an essential resource for librarians, library administrators, educators, and administration of both K-12 and higher education students of library sciences, pre-service teachers, researchers, and academicians.

Virtual Reality, Training's Future? Robert J. Seidel, Paul R. Chatelier, 2013-06-29. In 1988, the NATO panel governing human sciences, Panel 8 on Defence Applications of Human and Bio-Medical Sciences, established a Research Study Group to synthesize information relevant to Advanced Technologies Applied to Training Design. During its first phase, the RSG established an active exchange of information on advanced technologies applied to training design and stimulated much military application of these technologies. With the increased emphasis on training throughout the alliance, Panel 8 during its April 1991 meeting decided to continue with Phase II of this RSG, focusing in the area of advanced training technologies that were emerging within the alliance. In order to accomplish its mission, the RSG held a series of workshops. Leaders in technology and training were brought together and exchanged information on the latest developments in technologies applicable to training and education. This volume represents the last in a series based on the NATO workshops. In Part One, it details findings from the last workshop, Virtual Reality for Training, and in Part Two, we provide a summary perspective on Virtual Reality and the other emerging technologies previously studied. These include computer-based training, expert systems, authoring systems, cost effectiveness, and distance learning. It is a natural extension to proceed from learning without boundaries to virtual environments. From the extended classroom to the individual or team immersion in a distributed virtual and collaborative environment is an easy conceptual step.

Annual Review of Cybertherapy and Telemedicine 2012 B. K.

Wiederhold, Giuseppe Riva, 2012 Healthcare delivery systems have evolved greatly in recent years thanks to technological advances. Shifts in care diagnosis and treatment have decreased the importance of traditional methods of care delivery and new ways have been developed to monitor and treat heart disease, inflammation and infection, cancer, diabetes and other chronic conditions. Monitoring techniques in combination with imaging and telemetrics can provide real time continuous evaluation of many conditions and technology has not only helped to extend our lifespan but has contributed to an improved quality of life for all citizens. This book examines and summarizes current and emerging trends in cybertherapy. It is divided into five main sections: critical reviews, evaluation studies, original research, clinical observations and work in progress. The book underlines the progress cybertherapy has made in treating a variety of disorders; it also explores the challenges still to be faced, including the development of easy to use and more affordable hardware and software as well as objective measurement tools. It also highlights the need to address potential side effects and the importance of implementing more controlled studies to evaluate the strength of cybertherapy in comparison to traditional therapies and will be of interest to all those involved in the delivery of healthcare today.

Visual Information Communication Mao Lin Huang, Quang Vinh Nguyen, Kang Zhang, 2009-10-20 Visual communication through graphical and sign languages has long been conducted among human beings of different backgrounds and cultures and in recent decades between human and machine. In today's digital world, visual information is typically encoded with various metaphors commonly used in daily life to facilitate rapid comprehension and easy analysis during the communication process. Visual information communication generally encompasses information visualization, graphical user interfaces, visual analytics, visual languages and multi media processing. It has been successfully employed in knowledge discovery, end user programming, modeling, rapid systems prototyping, education and design activities by people of many disciplines including architects, artists, children, engineers and scientists. In addition, visual information is increasingly being used to facilitate human-human communication through the Internet and Web technology and electronic mobile devices. This manuscript provides the cutting edge techniques, approaches and the latest ongoing researches in the context of visual information communication. It is a collection of 24 chapters selected from more than 60 submissions to the VINCI 09 2009 Visual Information Communications International Conference that is held in Sydney, Australia, September 2009. These chapters were selected through a stringent review process to ensure their high standard in quality, significance and relevance. Each chapter was reviewed by at least two international Program Committee members of VINCI 09. The book covers a broad range of contents in five key sub areas of visual information communication including:

Psychoanalysis for Intersectional Humanity Ricardo Espinoza Lolas, 2023-09-29 Psychoanalysis for Intersectional Humanity considers both the vast realm of sexual diversities emerging under capitalism and outlines what a psychoanalytic clinic that considers these diversities should be like.
