

Information

The STP8000 car kit is designed for 12 V negative earth systems. In vehicles with a 24 V supply, an approved converter must be used, NOT a 12 V tap on the battery.

The equipment is to be installed in accordance with the requirements of local radio communications authorities and/or Health and Safety regulations.

12 V supply leads, antenna cables and speaker wiring is to be routed as far away as possible from gas or fuel lines. This reduces the risk to safety in the event of a leak.

The car kit should be positioned so that it does not obstruct, or become at risk of damage from, any occupant or carried items. All cabling should be hidden and not left loose.

Radio Software

For correct operation of the STP8000 with the car kit, the STP8000 must have radio software of v9.0 greater.

INSTALLATION

This installation guide provides basic installation information and is not intended to be definitive, as different types of vehicles will require different ways installation arrangements.

The installer must ensure that fixing screws of an appropriate length are used (some installations may require different screws). The information given here is general and for guidance only.

The installation must comply with in-country CODE OF PRACTICE for the installation of mobile radio and related ancillary equipment in land based vehicles — e.g. FCS1362 (formally MPT1362) see <http://www.fcs.org.uk>.

WARNING

- 1 Disconnect the vehicle's battery before commencing installation (be aware of effect on public broadcast radio security code, alarm systems and some engine management systems).
- 2 Do not smoke, or use naked flames, when working near the vehicle's fuel system.
- 3 Ensure that fuel lines, hydraulic lines and existing cables are not damaged during installation.
- 4 Ensure that the installation does not impede the normal operation of the vehicle, including the operation of any safety device, e.g., airbags and seatbelt tensioners.
- 5 Speed control, fuel injection, anti-lock braking, navigation, air bag and other electronic systems are relatively immune to RF interference. However, if difficulty is experienced, or faulty operation suspected, consult the vehicle's dealer.
- 6 This equipment is suitable for 12 V negative earth vehicles only. Use on other supply systems will result in damage to the equipment.
- 7 No part of the equipment should be mounted such that injury to the occupants is likely during an accident.
- 8 Prolonged operation of the radio in the car kit with the vehicle engine switched off, could drain the vehicle's battery.

- 9 Prolonged operation at high volume levels may cause the interface unit to become hot.

Cradle

The cradle should be attached to the vehicle's interior in a convenient position using the mounting brackets. The location of the cradle should allow the user unrestricted access to the radio's controls. The radio's display should be visible to the user but not distracting when driving. The cradle should not prevent the user from controlling or operating the vehicle.

Interface Unit

Attach the interface unit to the vehicle's interior, using, if appropriate, the four 25mm self-tapping screws provided.

The interface unit should be mounted on a firm surface inside the passenger compartment, within reach of all cabling. The data socket should be easily accessible. Connect the lead from the cradle to the socket labelled "RADIO". Connect the vehicle harness to the socket labelled "AUTO".

Note: Do not install the interface unit in engine compartment.

Cables & Connectors

Ensure the cables due not rub against sharp edges and are not subjected to undue stress.

Power Connection (thick red and black wires)

- The positive power line must include a fuse as close as possible to the power source. The negative power line must be connected close to the battery-to-vehicle-body connexion (not directly to the battery) and must not include a fuse.
- It is recommended that the power cable runs are kept as short as possible.
- The blue wire provides an ignition sensing input. If ignition switching is required, trim the wire to length so that it can be wired, via a fuse, to the ignition switch, using the splicing connector provided. Otherwise this wire must be connected, via a fuse, to the permanent positive supply. A fuse must always be fitted close to where the wire is connected.

Fuse Ratings

Positive supply	4 A	Ignition sense	1 A

The ring terminated wires are for direct connection to the vehicle battery (do not connect at this stage); supply should not be taken from any other point.

Feed the bullet terminated free ends through the bulkhead, using a grommet to protect the wires. Locate the free ends under the dashboard and connect to the main wiring harness supplied with the car kit. Connect the ring terminals to the vehicle battery when the rest of the installation (see following sections) is complete and satisfactory.

Remote Microphone

The remote microphone is a high performance noise cancelling type. For best results it should be directed towards
