

P-N Junction diode

→ When P-type of semiconductor is fused with n-type of semiconductor by special method called doping, it forms junction called P-N Junction and the device thus formed is called P-N junction diode.

Depletion layer - The region in which no free charge carriers (electrons & holes) are available and is called depletion layer.

Potential barrier - When depletion layer is formed, during this process, the positive donor ions of N-region and negative acceptor ions of P-region cannot move across junction hence these are called immobile ions.

The positive immobile ion present in N-region set up high potential and the negative immobile ions set up low potential, so electric field developed potential is developed which act as barrier (V_B).

Potential developed across junction in depletion layer is called barrier potential.

(2) Forward bias :- When positive terminal of battery is connected to P-region & negative terminal to N-region, it is called Forward bias.
