Parliament. House of Commons. Committee on Standards,2015 In January 2013 three lay members became part of a new Committee on Standards As a result of the lay members reflections on the experience of their first year in office the Committee on Standards decided to undertake a comprehensive review of the standards system in the House of Commons There has been a decline in public trust not just in politics but in other institutions The expenses scandal played a significant part in reducing public trust and the Committee do not underestimate its impact. It still has an immense effect on how MPs activities are seen and reported. The majority of MPs carry out their tasks without any questions raised about the propriety of their actions. The growth in constituency case work suggests that while the public may distrust MPs in general in practice they are willing to bring individual MPs their problems. MPs have a complex and multi faceted role and one of the lessons of the last year has been that there is little understanding of what MPs do, the rules governing their conduct and the ways in which those rules are enforced. This Report is intended to increase that understanding as well as to propose improvements. This report sets out the range of functions that an MP undertakes. It describes the various aspects of MPs work and the limitations of their role. It acknowledges MPs need the freedom to decide their priorities within a potentially infinite workload. The Committee believes self regulation with external input is the appropriate system.

Seeking Impact and Visibility Trotter, Henry, Kell, Catherine, 2014-06-12 African scholarly research is relatively invisible globally because even though research production on the continent is growing in absolute terms it is falling in comparative terms. In addition traditional metrics of visibility such as the Impact Factor fail to make legible all African scholarly production. Many African universities also do not take a strategic approach to scholarly communication to broaden the reach of their scholars work. To address this challenge the Scholarly Communication in Africa Programme SCAP was established to help raise the visibility of African scholarship by mapping current research and communication practices in Southern African universities and by recommending and piloting technical and administrative innovations based on open access dissemination principles. To do this SCAP conducted extensive research in four faculties at the Universities of Botswana, Cape Town, Mauritius and Namibia.

Fiduciary Government Evan J. Criddle, Evan Fox-Decent, Andrew S. Gold, Sung Hui Kim, Paul B. Miller, 2018-11-15 The idea that the state is a fiduciary to its citizens has a long pedigree ultimately reaching back to the ancient Greeks and including Hobbes and Locke among its proponents. Public fiduciary theory is now experiencing a resurgence with applications that range from international law to insider trading by members of Congress to election law and gerrymandering. This book is the first of its kind, a collection of chapters by leading writers on public fiduciary subject areas. The authors develop new accounts of how fiduciary principles apply to representation to officials and judges to problems of legitimacy and political obligation to positive rights to the state itself and to the history of ideas. The resulting volume should be of great interest to political theorists and public law scholars to private fiduciary law scholars and to students seeking an introduction to this new and increasingly relevant area of study.
