leaders offer a fuller picture behind the stories characters and magical realms in Disney's beloved and respected animated films. When the very first animated films appeared there were no directors. With no actors, sets, costumes, or sound, what appeared onscreen was simply decided and drawn by an animator. Since early films were usually made by only one or two artists, there was little need for planning. Organization was loose. When Walt Disney started animating on shorts and advertising projects in Kansas City, Missouri, he followed that process along with fellow artist and friend Ub Iwerks. Walt found that his strength was in story and character. He began writing outlines describing what would appear scene by scene. Soon the text was accompanied by a sketch previsualizing the layout, giving all animators working on a film a clear vision of how their parts fit into the whole. Ultimately, Walt shepherded stories from their inception through every revision and gag. He approved every camera angle. He dictated what happened in every shot, sometimes every frame, obsessing over every detail. While not credited as such onscreen, Walt was the first Disney director. As the Disney studio grew, Walt organically evolved the role of director, reflecting the amount of trust he had in those he worked with, his interest in a specific project, and what other projects he had on his plate. Walt expected his directors to follow his instructions and to improve the work at every turn.

Directing at Disney: The Original Directors of Walt's Animated Films offers the little-known history behind Walt's foundational directors such as Wilfred Jackson, Clyde Geronimi, and Dave Hand. These talents directed some of the most beloved films in existence: Snow White and Seven Dwarfs, Pinocchio, Peter Pan, and One Hundred and One Dalmatians, yet virtually no one has heard of them until now.

Exhibitors Daily Review, 1925

Nordic Explorations John Fullerton, Jan Olsson, 1999

Nordic Explorations: Film Before 1930 includes twenty previously unpublished essays written for the 1999 retrospective of Nordic cinema at la Giornate del Cinema Muto in Italy. It brings together leading research on early cinema in Denmark, Finland, Norway, and Sweden and includes essays on some of the major figures in Nordic cinema, including Dreyer, Christensen, Sjostrom, and Stiller. Much current research in Nordic film before 1930 is also represented in this anthology with studies of the Norwegian travel genre, Nordic animated film, the relation of Nordic cinema to German and Russian film, the development of educational cinema and industrial film, as well as studies of individual films, filmmakers, and national styles and the relation of the medium to other forms of popular entertainment. The essays make a timely contribution to the more general study of cinema, afford authoritative and stimulating insight into research in the field, and challenge many assumptions regarding Nordic cinema before 1930.
