A very good evening to my English teacher PN Siti Munirah and my fellow friends. Today on this fine evening I would like talk about 'Social Networking'

Human beings by and large are social. They feel an inherent need to connect and expand their connections. There is a deep rooted need among humans to share.

In the past, due to geographical distances and economic concerns, connections between people were limited. A social network is made up of individuals that are connected to one another by a particular type of interdependency. It could be ideas, values, trade, anything.

Social networks operate on many levels. Initially social networking happened at family functions where all relative and friends would conglomerate under one roof.

Social networking has always been prevalent; it is just that in these times the face of social networking has changed. Where earlier the process was long drawn, involving a chain movement where in one person led to another through a web of social contacts, today the process is highly specialized.

Communication has been instrumental to a large extent to the growth of social networking. With the advent of Internet and the cell phone a lot of social interaction is captured through email and instant messaging.

Today there are a lot of online social networking sites where individuals volunteer information about themselves and their social networks. Social networking allows for like- minded people to interact with another.

An online social networking site is a place where a user can create a profile and build a personal network that connects the user to other users. What used to be just a niche activity has today taken the proportions of a global phenomenon that engages tens of millions of Internet users.

Essays on Signaling and Social Networks Tomas Rodriguez Barraquer, 2011 Over the last few decades some analytic tools intensely used by economics have produced useful insights in topics formerly in the exclusive reach of other social sciences In particular game theory justifiable from either a multi person decision theoretic perspective or from an evolutionary one often serves as a generous yet sufficiently tight framework for interdisciplinary dialogue The three essays in this collection apply game theory to answer questions with some aspects of economic interest The three of them have in common that they are related to topics to which other social sciences specially sociology have made significant contributions While working within economics I have attempted to use constructively and faithfully some of these ideas Chapter 1 coauthored with Xu Tan studies situations in which a set of agents take actions in order to convey private information to an observing third party which then assigns a set of prizes based on its beliefs about the ranking of the agents in terms of the unobservable characteristic These situations were first studied using game theoretic frameworks by Spence and Akerlof in the early seventies but some of the key insights date back to the foundational work of Veblen In our analysis we focus on the competitive aspect of some of these situations and cast signals as random variables whose distributions are determined by the underlying unobservable characteristics Under this formulation different signals have inherent meanings preceding any stable conventions that may be established We use these prior meanings to propose an equilibrium selection criterion which significantly refines the very large set of sequential equilibria in this class of games In Chapter 2 coauthored with Matthew O Jackson and Xu Tan we study the structure of social networks that allow individuals to cooperate with one another in settings in which behavior is non contractible by supporting schemes of credible ostracism of deviators There is a significant literature on the subject of cooperation in social networks focusing on the role of the network in transmitting the information necessary for the timely punishment of deviators and deriving properties of network structures able to sustain cooperation from that perspective Ours is one of the first efforts to understand the network restrictions that emerge purely from the credibility of ostracism carefully considering the implications that the dissolution of any given relationship may have over the sustainability of other relations in the community In Chapter 3 I study the sets of Pure Strategy Nash equilibria of a variety of binary games of social influence under complete information In a game of social influence agents simultaneously choose one of two possible strategies to be inactive or be active and the optimal choice depends on the strategies of the agents in their social environment Different social environments and assumptions on the way in which they influence the behavior of the agents lead to different classes of games of varying degrees of tractability In any such game an equilibrium can be described by the set of agents that are active and the full set of equilibria can be thus represented as a collection of subsets of the set of agents I build the analysis of each of the classes of games that I consider around the question What collections of sets are expressible as the set of equilibria of some game in the class I am able to provide precise answers to these questions in some of the classes studied and in other cases just some pointers
