Esses, Richard A. Vernon, 2009-01-26 Written by an international team of renowned scholars this volume addresses the multitude of factors that may lead to the deadly breakdown of ethnic relations The book Draws on real world case studies such as Rwanda Sudan and the Second Palestinian Intifada Brings together original contributions and theoretical perspectives by a team of experts in psychology and related disciplines such as sociology and political science Identifies events and processes that can break down inhibitions against violence and lead to mass killings and genocide Examines explanations that must be considered in making sense of past acts and offers suggestions for interventions to prevent future repetitions      Fairness and Groups Margaret Ann Neale, Elizabeth A. Mannix, Elizabeth

Mullen, 2010-06-10 Concerns about justice and fairness are ubiquitous within and between communities social groups organizations and states This title introduces justice theorizing and research at the intersection of justice and groups It is of interest to students and scholars in psychology sociology law and organizational behavior      Emotions in Conflict Eran Halperin, 2015-12-07 Social and political psychologists have attempted to reveal the reasons why individuals and societies that acknowledge that peace would improve their personal and collective well being and are aware of the required actions needed to promote it are simply incapable of making this step forward Some social psychologists have advocated the idea that certain societal beliefs and collective memories about the nature of the opponent the in group the history and the current state of the conflict distort the perceptions of society members and prevent them from identifying opportunities for peace But these cognitive barriers capture only part of the picture Could identifying the role of discrete emotions in conflicts and conflict resolution potentially provide a wide platform for developing pinpoint conflict resolution interventions Using a vast array of primary sources critical literature analysis and firsthand personal experiences in various conflict zones Middle East Cyprus Bosnia and Northern Ireland Eran Halperin introduces a new perspective on psychological barriers to peace Halperin focuses on various emotional mechanisms that hamper peace processes even when parties face real opportunities for conflict resolution More specifically he explores how hatred anger fear angst hope despair empathy guilt and shame combined with various emotion regulation strategies provide emotions based explanations for people's attitudinal and behavioral reactions to peace related events during the ongoing process of conflict resolution Written in a clear and accessible style Emotions in Conflict offers a thought provoking and pioneering insight into the role discrete intergroup emotions play in impeding as well as facilitating peace processes in intractable conflicts This book is essential reading for those who study intractable conflicts and their resolutions and those who are interested in the real world implication of recent theories and findings on emotion and emotion regulation      Pride, Not Prejudice Eunbin Chung, 2022-02-28 As shown by China's relationship to Japan and Japan's relationship to South Korea even growing regional economic interdependencies are not enough to overcome bitter memories grounded in earlier wars, invasions and periods of colonial domination. Although efforts to ease historical animosity have been made, few have proven to be successful in Northeast Asia. In previous research, scholars anticipated an improvement in relations through thick economic interdependence or increased societal contact. In economic terms, however, Japan and China already trade heavily; Japan has emerged as China's largest trading partner and China as second largest to Japan. Societal contact is already intense as millions of Chinese, Koreans and Japanese visit one another's countries annually as students, tourists and on business trips. But these developments have not alleviated international distrust and negative perception or resolved disagreement on what constitutes adequate reparation regarding the countries' painful history. Noticing clashes of strong nationalisms around the world in areas like Northeast Asia, numerous studies have suggested that more peaceful relations are likely only if countries submerge or paper over existing national identities by promoting universalism. Pride Not Prejudice argues to the contrary that affirmation of national identities may be a more effective way to build international cooperation. If each national population reflects on the values of their national identity, trust and positive perception can increase between countries. This idea is consistent with the theoretical foundation that those who have a clear, secure and content sense of self in turn can be more open, evenhanded and less defensive toward others. In addition, this reduced defensiveness also enhances guilt admission by past inflictors of conflict and colonialism. Eunbin Chung borrows the social psychological theory of self-affirmation and applies it to an international context to argue that affirmation of a national identity or reflecting on what it means to be part of one's country can increase trust, guilt recognition and positive perception between countries.
