- Key Principles of Social Psychology:
 - o Behaviour is affected by a person's attributes as well as the situation they are in
 - o Our intuition naturally overestimates how much a person's traits affect their behaviour, and underestimate the influence of the situation on their behaviour (this is called the fundamental attribution error)
 - § We fail to appreciate the power of subtle situational influences.
 - § We make person attributions automatically and intuitively. By contrast, situation attributions require controlled, attention-demanding processing.
 - § Perceptual biases: when we observe behaviour the actor is often more perceptually salient than the background context/situation
 - o To predict and explain behaviour it is critical to analyze not just the objective situation but also the subjective situation as it appears from the actor's pov.
- Why do False Confessions occur?
 - o false confessions are a product of social influence
 - o police interrogations are theory-driven social interactions founded from a presumption of guilt
- Experimental Evidence of Social Influence
 - o Crime: Mock theft in which some participants took a key from a room and used it to steal $100 from a locked cabinet in a campus building.
 - o Manipulation of suspect's guilt:
 - § Guilty condition: suspects committed the mock theft before being interrogated
