NON-CITIZENS IN LATVIA: IS IT A REAL PROBLEM?

Abstract

Following the restoration of independence in 1991, Latvia has introduced restrictive citizenship strategy involving citizenship only to those who had it before the Soviet occupation, and to their descendants. As a result, about one-third of the population in Latvia—the former citizens of the Soviet Union who had immigrated to Latvia during the Soviet period—received the status of 'non-citizen'. In the 1990s, political discourse on the citizenship policy dominated in Latvia. Exclusive Citizenship Act was criticized by international institutions, including the UN, EU, OSCE and CoE. As a result of international pressure Latvia has introduced appropriate amendments to facilitate access to citizenship for non-citizens. Non-citizens and stateless in Latvia represent 11.8% and 0.01% of the population, respectively, which is more than 252 thousand residents of Latvia. It means that non-citizenship phenomenon has not been resolved completely. A few Latvian regulations restrict non-citizens and stateless to participate in elections, occupy public positions and offices, and travel. This article addresses the problem of non-citizenship as a second matter of concerns in Latvian domestic policy. While limitations for non-citizens implicate their political, economic and social status, Latvian authority is far from granting citizenship to non-citizens in 'zero option' procedure.

Key words: citizenship; non-citizens; statelessness; naturalization; Latvia conflicts or as targets of securitization policies Transported conflicts occurring within and between diasporas in their countries of residence however remain relatively underexplored tend to be misunderstood and often associated with criminal or terrorist activities The chapters in this volume draw our attention to various interconnected temporalities explaining patterns of conflict transportation such as the temps long of diasporic mobilisation the here and now of what is happening in both host and home countries and micro temporalities and diasporans life trajectories Finally the contributions demonstrate that patterns shapes and even occurrence of conflict transportation vary according to scale and space Highly politicized forms of confrontation are not necessarily representative of everyday interactions between diaspora groups which can entail discrete but tangible forms of cooperation and even solidarity This edited volume calls for nuancing our approach to the links between diasporas and conflicts to avoid falling into the essentialisation trap The chapters in this book were originally published in Ethnopolitics Interculturalism and Discrimination in Romania François Ruegg, Rudolf Poledna, Călin Rus, 2006 This volume presents research on intercultural relations in South Eastern Europe including the way they are imagined and managed in different social and historical contexts After an introductory critique of the concepts of interculturalism and citizenship the situation in Romania is investigated The second part deals with a series of in depth comparative studies namely on the Roma minorities in Romania and Bulgaria But it also considers the case of the Pomaks in Bulgaria of Russians living in parallel societies in the Baltic States and the recent evolution of interculturalism in the region
