

Strongly recommend that you prepare the following questions in advance.

Remember, we have about 100 different ways to construct a sample of 10000. Suppose we get 10000 values (just using the population of values 1-10000) and compute the mean and standard deviation of these 10000 values. Then, using a new set of 10000 values (just from the population of values 1-10000), we compute a different set of 10000 values. Repeat this process 100 times. We will have 100 different sample means and standard deviations. What do you expect the distribution of these 100 sample means and standard deviations to be?
