Rationale

Vital signs are measurements of the body's most basic functions. The three main vital signs routinely monitored by healthcare providers include body temperature, pulse rate and respiration rate.

Objectives

Upon completion of this lesson, the student will be able to:

- Accurately measure an oral temperature, as well as radial pulse and respiration
- Evaluate a peer using skills check
- Illustrate, with a graph, temperature, pulse and respiration

Engage

Give each student the TPR Safety Sheet, a thermometer, and have a clock with a second hand in the classroom. Have students shake down the thermometer, place in their mouth under the tongue, and time for three minutes. As the students remove their thermometers and read their temperatures, record each temperature on the board. After recording all temperatures, have the students formulate a normal oral temperature range for the class. Compare the results with the textbook range of normal. Do the same for radial pulse and respiration.

Key Points

I. Vital signs include

- A. Temperature
- B. Pulse
- C. Respiration
- D. Blood Pressure

II. Temperature

- A. Refers to temperature inside the body or core body heat.
