Territoires Du Commerce Et Développement Durable:

Territoires du commerce et développement durable Philippe Dugot, Michaël Pouzenc, 2010-12-01 Vecteur d'une consommation durable et peu soucieux des conditions sociales et écologiques de la production le commerce passe pour un fossoyeur du développement durable. Après avoir interrogé les imperfections conceptuelles du développement durable et la pertinence d'un regard sectoriel cet ouvrage propose une exploration réflexive sous l'angle des mobilités du paysage de la régulation et des filières d'approvisionnement. Il revient sur certaines assertions qui encombrant le chantier largement ouvert des modalités d'une consommation durable.

La campagne "Fair Trade Towns" Lisa Rolland, 2015 Le commerce équitable fait majoritairement l'objet de travaux en sciences agro-économiques étudiés d'impact de filière structuration des organisations. Par ailleurs si les premières recherches étaient centrées vers le Sud et dans la compréhension de flux mondialisés un décentrement du secteur vers d'autres espaces et dynamiques d'acteurs est perceptible autour de nouveaux enjeux liés son inscription dans les politiques publiques. Cette évolution ouvre des perspectives originales de recherche et élargit le champ des disciplines concernées. La thèse s'inscrit dans ces nouvelles approches. Elle interroge les Fair Trade Towns campagne internationale de promotion du commerce équitable lancée en 2000 déclinent essentiellement dans les villes européennes. Dans ce projet l'objectif est d'associer collectifs acteurs locaux privés et publics pour valoriser le commerce équitable à l'échelle d'un territoire. Dans une démarche de géographie sociale la recherche s'intéresse ce changement de paradigme du commerce équitable et interroge le rôle de nouveaux acteurs dans ce processus ainsi que les différentes stratégies spatiales en jeu dans le cadre d'une territorialisation inédite. Pour les comprendre la thèse se fonde sur des enquêtes de terrain associant entretiens, dessins, cartes mentales et observation. Les villes de Lyon et Bruxelles sont les deux terrains d'étude choisis d'abord cliniquement puis nationalement. Territoires de commerce équitable en France 2009 Communes du commerce équitable ou Fair Trade Gemeente en Belgique 2004 la campagne prend la forme d'un titre d'adhésion à une collectivité mais aussi celle d'un outil de communication du développement durable urbain. La campagne atteste du rôle nouveau et central de collectifs dans ce projet territorial avec des stratégies d'acteurs et des tensions palpables sur une redéfinition du commerce équitable dans les Nordes.

Commerce et urbanisme commercial dans la fabrique de la ville durable Philippe Dugot, 2019-02-28

Territoires du commerce populaire, 2024-11-13 Géographie du commerce et de la consommation Nathalie Lemarchand, 2009 Pour un développement durable du commerce en ligne France Stratégie, France. Conseil général de l'environnement et du développement durable, France. Inspection générale des finances, 2021 Commerce et développement durable Alain Metton, Gérard Hugon, 2007 Développement durable des territoires Jean-Paul Carrière, Abdelillah Hamdouch, Corneliu Iatu, 2016-04-07 Commerce et ville ou commerce sans la ville ? Arnaud Gasnier, 2010 Alors que le commerce a toujours fait la ville ce moteur d'urbanisation contribue également à la faire évoluer et la zoner. L'hypothèse d'un tournant urbanistique l'œuvre depuis plus d'une décennie et de nouvelles approches.

environnementales sociales et économiques de la fabrique urbaine dessinent de nouvelles perspectives de développement durable urbain et interrogent directement la mise en rapport entre urbanisme d'une part et urbanisme commercial d'autre part. L'objectif principal de cet ouvrage consiste à approcher le jeu des acteurs producteurs d'espaces commerciaux distributeurs promoteurs développeurs au regard des transformations récentes des politiques d'urbanisme commercial et de questionner les conditions et les actions susceptibles de conduire une meilleure intégration de l'activité commerciale dans les politiques urbaines. Les études de cas nombreuses abordées ici aussi bien en France qu'à l'étranger (États-Unis, Italie, Grande-Bretagne, Belgique, Tunisie, Algérie, Togo) sont placées au croisement des stratégies économiques d'implantation de conception des centres commerciaux et de l'aménagement du territoire. Les stratégies d'implantation commerciale de renouvellement urbain en centres anciens ou en entrées de ville mais aussi d'accessibilité et de couture urbaine figurent au cœur des thématiques et des problématiques développées dans les différents chapitres de ce volume.
