hemisphere inferior frontal and superior temporal areas and negative going event related potentials have been consistently associated with morphological processing While most previous research has been done on the recognition of morphologically complex words in adult native speakers much less is known about neurocognitive processes involved in the on line production of morphologically complex words and even less on morphological processing in children and non native speakers Moreover we have limited understanding of how linguistically distinct morphological processes e g inflectional listen ed versus derivational assign ment are handled by the cortical language networks This e book provides an up to date overview of the questions currently addressed in the field of morphological processing It highlights the significance of morphological information in language processing both written and spoken as assessed by a variety of methods and approaches It also provides a comprehensive range of research and development tools for the development of new technologies
