Pant Perfection

Since Adam and Eve first partook of that forbidden fruit, humans have spent immense resources to develop the perfect accoutrement for all seasons and occasions. While trends continue to evolve with various cultural and economic shifts, pants (also known as slacks) remain the most steadfast form of clothing, holding greater utility and value than all other forms of bottoms.

Pants are more sustainable than other bottoms, in terms of both manufacturing and daily usage. Ostensibly, the best clothes are the clothes a person chooses to wear frequently, without thought or second guess. In the annual Pants Symposium of 2022, Dr. Jeremy Trousers of Slack University notably said, "Pants have a psychology behind them. Pants can be worn at any time of year and are thus more likely to be worn than to stay stuck in a pile in the closet or at the bottom of a landfill."

Many people state that pants are naturally built for discomfort. However, this argument is specious at best. A survey of the student campus found that pants were not more or less comfortable than any other item of clothing. This suggests that pants are not as uncomfortable as often stated by the larger population, while also bringing to light the naturally subjective concept of "discomfort."

Pants are the best bottom covering and one of the best forms of clothing among all basic metrics. Questions about labor practices and materials used in manufacturing are worth addressing, but these apply to larger clothing industry standards. Further consideration of the clothing industry's impact on ecology and human labor is worthy and may prove to only support pants supremacy.

Positioning English for Specific Purposes in an English Language Teaching Context Nadežda Stojković,2019-01-18 With the unrelenting spread of globalization the English language has been firmly established as the Lingua Franca Now more than ever the importance of learning English is paramount within nearly all professional and educational sectors English for Specific Purposes ESP has long been accepted as an effective method for teaching English as a foreign language. In recent years it has experienced an increasing presence in secondary and tertiary education across the globe. This is predominantly due to its learner centered approach that focuses on developing linguistic competence in the student's specific discipline, may that be academics, business or tourism, for example. Positioning English for Specific Purposes in an English Language Teaching Context attempts to present and define the relevance and scope of ESP within English Language teaching. From mobile phones as educational tools to the language needs of medical students, the contributors to this volume examine and propose different epistemological and methodological aspects of ESP teaching. Its unique approach to ESP marks this volume out as an important and necessary contribution to existing ESP literature and one that will be of use to both researchers and practitioners of ESP.

A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan, 2014-11-15. In A New Writing Classroom, Patrick Sullivan provides a new generation of teachers a means and a rationale to reconceive their approach to teaching writing, calling into question the discipline's dependence on argument. Including secondary writing teachers within his purview, Sullivan advocates a more diverse, exploratory and flexible approach to writing activities in grades six through thirteen. A New Writing Classroom encourages teachers to pay more attention to research in learning theory, transfer of learning, international models for nurturing excellence in the classroom, and recent work in listening to teach students the sort of dialogic stance that leads to higher order thinking and more sophisticated communication The conventional argumentative essay is often a simplistic form of argument widely believed to be the most appropriate type of writing in English classes but other kinds of writing may be more valuable to students and offer more important kinds of cognitive challenges Focusing on listening and dispositions or habits of mind as central elements of this new composition pedagogy A New Writing Classroom draws not just on composition studies but also on cognitive psychology philosophy learning theory literature and history making an exciting and significant contribution to the field

Writing and

Learning in Cross-national Perspective David Foster, 2017-10-03 Despite the increasingly global implications of conversations about writing and learning U.S. composition studies has devoted little attention to cross-national perspectives on student writing and its roles in wider cultural contexts Caught up in our own concerns about how U.S. students make the transition as writers from secondary school to postsecondary education we often overlook the fact that students around the world are undergoing the same evolution How do the students in China England France Germany Kenya or South Africa the educational systems represented in this collection write their way into the communities of their chosen disciplines How for instance do students whose mother tongue is not the language of instruction cope with the demands of academic and discipline specific writing And in what ways is U.S. students development as academic writers similar to or different from that of students in other countries With this collection editors David Foster and David R. Russell broaden the discussion about the role of writing in various educational systems and cultures Students development as academic writers raises issues of student authorship and agency as well as larger issues of educational access institutional power relations system goals and students roles in society The contributors to this collection discuss selected writing purposes and forms characteristic of a specific national education system describe students agency as writers and identify contextual factors social economic linguistic cultural that shape institutional responses to writing development In discussions that bookend these studies of different educational structures the editors compare U S postsecondary writing practices and pedagogies with those in other national systems and suggest new perspectives for cross national study of learning writing issues important to all educational systems Given the worldwide increase in students entering higher education and the endless need for effective writing across disciplines and nations the insights offered here and the call for further studies are especially welcome and timely
