Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or pulmonary disease. They were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% of maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and EE of the subjects. The HR and EE were significantly lower at the end of the 12-week period compared to the beginning of the 12-week period. The control group did not show any significant changes in HR or EE. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular and metabolic health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output accordingly. For example, suppose the price for the product rises. The producer will want to produce more of the product, and this will be achieved by increasing the amount of inputs.
