

REACTION PAPER SAMPLE

In Ralph Rigman's book The Whisper of Names, he writes about his experiences growing up in the rural south of the country and how he envisions it possible to recreate the past wealth. His key points in this narrative and political story were that policy changes have resulted in the decline of southern wealth, and that continued machination would result in the downfall of the human race. He argues that by implementing more protectionist policies, agricultural and industrial jobs would return to the country and enable the rebuilding of poverty-stricken communities. Despite his arguments that policy changes have contributed most to the decline of the south, I believe that his lack of recognition of contribution of social factors makes this book highly unbelievable.

In The Whisper of Names, Rigman suggests that policy changes favoring imported goods have devastated the economy of the south. However, he fails to mention that much of the wealth of the south had been held in land-owning prosperous families who had benefited from the slave trade and subsequent cotton and tobacco industries. Throughout the early 20th century, these families continued to prosper under sharecropping laws. The civil rights movement finally brought to light the injustices of racial inequality as well as the violation of human rights that resulted in cheap labor that drove the southern economy. Of course, Mr. Rigman does not mention any of these factors in his book.

By focusing only on legal changes that support his argument, Mr. Rigman ends up weakening his overall statement. To be sure, the increase in imported goods increases competition and forces businesses to lower prices and/or increase innovation to gain customers. However, this is not necessarily a bad thing, and machination has increased worker safety and product consistency. The Whisper of Names is a powerful narrative of one man's observations of the dwindling wealth of the south, but it may not be a result of the movements that he cites.

Agile Data-Oriented Research Tools to Support Smallholder Farm System Transformation James Hammond,Mark Van Wijk,Aniruddha Ghosh,Tim Pagella,Jacob Van Etten,2023-05-09 Smallholder farming systems contribute a substantial quantity of the food consumed in many lower and middle income countries and contribute to the national and local economies Despite the importance of smallholder farming a transformation is needed in order to deliver food security and decent incomes for the farmers themselves and at the national level This transformation must also be sustainable in terms of environmental impacts and social equity in order to be successful in the long term The pressures of population growth climate change and land fragmentation compound the problem Addressing these overlapping issues is a big challenge One obstacle is the lack of good quality granular data linking these issues together Household surveys are the workhorse method for gathering such data but there are well known problems that prevent household survey data from building up a big picture and delivering insights beyond the geographical boundary of each individual study Such obstacles include the lack of access to datasets differences in survey design and respondent biases Agile data oriented research tools can help to overcome these challenges We use the term agile to imply methods that do not attempt exhaustive measurements which are designed to be easy to use and which entail some degree of flexibility in terms of adaptation to local conditions and integration with other tools or methods Often these methods also nudge the behavior of tool users towards best practices In recent years various research tools and approaches have been published which fit within our definition of agile data oriented research tools The domains these tools function in include monitoring and evaluation intervention targeting tailored information delivery citizen science credit scoring and user feedback collection all with the over arching aim to improve data quality and access for those studying the sustainable development of smallholder farming systems The goal of this Research Topic is to better define that niche the ecosystem of tools and current practices and to explore how such approaches can provide the underpinning knowledge required for the transformation of smallholder farming systems One example of an agile data oriented research tool is the Rural Household Multi Indicator Survey RHoMIS It is a modular digital system for building household surveys addressing the common topics in smallholder development It was purposefully designed to give a broad overview of the farm system whilst keeping survey duration to a minimum to be user friendly in implementation and to be sufficiently flexible to function in a broad variety of locations and projects Since 2015 it has been used by 30 organizations in 32 countries to interview over 34 000 households The tool and database are open access and a community of practice is developing around the tool We particularly welcome contributions that engage with the RHoMIS tool and data However we also describe the tool in order to provide an example of what is meant by an agile data oriented research tool and welcome contributions focusing on other tools or methodologies We encourage the submission of manuscripts addressing the above topic and those which fit within one of the following three sub themes i Perspectives or review articles which explore the niche best practices or promising approaches in agile data oriented research tools for smallholder farm system transformation Also technology and code articles that describe new tools are welcomed ii Original research articles presenting analyses based on data derived from agile data oriented tools used at the project level Examples include impact evaluations adoption studies targeting studies or adaptive management and should reflect on the additional benefit leveraged by the agile method applied iii Original research articles that make use of the large amounts of data generated by such agile methods and or link between agile data and other data sources Examples include meta analyses of data from multiple studies layering data collected from different agile tools or linking agile data to remote sensing or large scale modeling outputs with New Technologies Sappleton, Natalie,2013-04-30 This book examines the applicability and usefulness of new technologies as well as the pitfalls of these methods in academic research practices serving as a practical guide for designing and conducting research projects Provided by publisher Transformations of Policing Alistair Henry,2017-05-15 Police and People in London is still the largest and most detailed study of a police force and its relations with the public that has yet been undertaken in Britain The twenty three years since its publication has seen a constantly accelerating rate of change in the legal framework of policing in the arrangements for democratic accountability of the police in the technologies involved in crime and policing in management structures and methods in the police service in financial control systems imposed by central government and in methods of assessing police performance Over the same period crime control has moved from the bottom to the top of the political agenda leading to increasing pressure on the police to be seen to be effective

Transformations of Policing returns to the central issues discussed in 1983 and considers whether the main conclusions need to be revised in the light of what has happened since It also reviews areas of debate and research that have emerged more recently and highlights areas of turbulence that are creating fundamentally different patterns from before and raising genuinely new questions

Handbook of Survey Methodology for the Social Sciences Lior Gideon, 2012-06-21 Surveys enjoy great ubiquity among data collection methods in social research they are flexible in questioning techniques in the amount of questions asked in the topics covered and in the various ways of interactions with respondents Surveys are also the preferred method by many researchers in the social sciences due to their ability to provide quick profiles and results Because they are so commonly used and fairly easy to administer surveys are often thought to be easily thrown together But designing an effective survey that yields reliable and valid results takes more than merely asking questions and waiting for the answers to arrive Geared to the non statistician the Handbook of Survey Methodology in Social Sciences addresses issues throughout all phases of survey design and implementation Chapters examine the major survey methods of data collection providing expert guidelines for asking targeted questions improving accuracy and quality of responses while reducing sampling and non sampling bias Relying on the Total Survey Error theory various issues of both sampling and non sampling sources of error are explored and discussed By covering all aspects of the topic the Handbook is suited to readers taking their first steps in survey methodology as well as to those already involved in survey design and execution and to those currently in training Featured in the Handbook The Total Survey Error sampling and non sampling errors Survey sampling techniques The art of question phrasing Techniques for increasing response rates A question of ethics what is allowed in survey research Survey design face to face phone mail e mail online computer assisted Dealing with sensitive issues in surveys Demographics of respondents implications for future survey research Dealing with nonresponse and nonresponse bias The Handbook of Survey Methodology in Social Sciences offers how to clarity for researchers in the social and behavioral sciences and related disciplines including sociology criminology criminal justice social psychology education public health political science management and many other disciplines relying on survey methodology as one of their main data collection tools
