Parallel Programming with Co-arrays Robert W. Numrich, 2018-09-06 Parallel Programming with Co Arrays describes the basic techniques used to design parallel algorithms for high performance scientific computing It is intended for upper level undergraduate students and graduate students who need to develop parallel codes with little or no previous introduction to parallel computing It is also intended as a reference manual for researchers active in the field of scientific computing All the algorithms in the book are based on partition operators These operators provide a unifying principle that fits seemingly disparate techniques into an overall framework for algorithm design The book uses the co array programming model to illustrate how to write code for concrete examples but it emphasizes that the important concepts for algorithm design are independent of the programming model With these concepts in mind the reader can write algorithms in different programming models based on personal taste and comfort An Introduction to Text Mining Gabe Ignatow, Rada Mihalcea, 2017-09-22 Students in social science courses communicate, socialize, shop, learn and work online. When they are asked to collect data for course projects, they are often drawn to social media platforms and other online sources of textual data. There are many software packages and programming languages available to help students collect data online and there are many texts designed to help with different forms of online research, from surveys to ethnographic interviews. But there is no textbook available that teaches students how to construct a viable research project based on online sources of textual data such as newspaper archives, site user comment archives, digitized historical documents or social media user comment archives. Gabe Ignatow and Rada F. Mihalcea's new text An Introduction to Text Mining will be a starting point for undergraduates and first year graduate students interested in collecting and analyzing textual data from online sources and will cover the most critical issues that students must take into consideration at all stages of their research projects, including ethical and philosophical issues, issues related to research design, web scraping and crawling, strategic data selection, data sampling, use of specific text analysis methods and report writing.
