The Historical Novel in Nineteenth-Century Europe Brian Hamnett, 2011-11-24 Even at the height of its popularity in the early nineteenth century the historical novel faced criticism at many levels After its predominance in the 1810s and 1820s writers and historians shunned it as a travesty of their respective disciplines Even so the historical novel has frequently attracted a wide ranging public right up to the present day Brian Hamnett examines key novels by authors including Scott Balzac Manzoni Dickens Eliot Flaubert Fontane Gald s and Tolstoy revealing the contradictions inherent in this form of fiction and exposing the challenges writers faced in attempting to represent a reality that linked past and present He argues that the historical novel in the nineteenth century was a common European phenomenon with considerable interconnection of themes and periods Accordingly the book ranges from the British Isles and France through the Germanic territories Italy and Spain to the Russian Empire identifying the different objectives and phases of the historical novel Although historical novels did appear in the two previous centuries the form came to maturity in the nineteenth century a consequence of the developing nature of history as a discipline distinct from literature and philosophy and the increasing primacy of the novel for writers and the reading public Yet the frontiers between history and literature remained blurred and the two disciplines continued to influence one another as each sought a faithful representation of human experience

Imagining Inclusive Society in Nineteenth-Century Novels Pam Morris, 2004-06-08 In Imagining Inclusive Society in Nineteenth Century Novels Pam Morris traces a dramatic transformation of British public consciousness that occurred between the Reform Acts of 1832 and 1867 This brief period saw a shift from a naturalized acceptance of social hierarchy to a general imagining of a modern mass culture Central to this collective revisioning of social relations was the pressure to restyle political leadership in terms of popular legitimacy to develop a more inclusive mode of discourse within an increasingly heterogeneous public sphere and to find new ways of inscribing social distinctions and exclusions Morris argues that in the transformed public sphere of mid nineteenth century Britain the urbane code of civility collapsed under the strain of the conflicting interests that constitute mass society It was replaced by a code of sincerity often manipulative and always ideological in that its inclusiveness was based upon a formally egalitarian assumption of mutual interiorities The irresistible movement toward mass politics shifted the location of power into the public domain Increasingly national leaders sought to gain legitimacy by projecting a performance of charismatic sincerity as a flattering and insinuating mode of address to mass audiences Yet by the latter decades of the century while the code of sincerity continued to dominate popular and political culture traditional political and intellectual elites were reinscribing social distinctions and exclusions They did so both culturally by articulating sensibility as skepticism irony and aestheticism and scientifically by introducing evolutionist notions of sensibility and attaching these to a rigorous disciplinary code of bodily visibility Through an intensive intertextual reading of six key novels Brontë's Shirley Thackeray's Henry Esmond Dickens's Bleak House and Our Mutual Friend Gaskell's North and South and Eliot's Romola and an array of Victorian periodicals and political essays Morris analyzes just how actively novelists engaged in these social transformations Drawing on a wide range of literary cultural and historical thinkers Jürgen Habermas Michel Foucault Benedict Anderson Mary Poovey and Charles Tilly Morris makes an original and highly sophisticated contribution to our understanding of the complex and always contested processes of imagining social inclusiveness

Masculinities in Mid-Twentieth-Century Irish Fiction and Culture, 1931-1965 Loic Wright, 2025-09-29 Masculinities in Mid Twentieth Century Irish Fiction and Culture 1931 1965 is a critical analysis of the construction consolidation and regulation of post colonial Irish masculinity as evidenced by Irish fiction published during the mid twentieth century Investigating the years of the Irish Free State and the Republic of Ireland this book uses the years preceding the enactment of Bunreacht na hÍreann the Irish Constitution in 1937 and the years following the First Programme for Economic Expansion in 1958 as its span for research The analysis in this book incorporates contextual work on the masculinities of election rhetoric Church and State visions of an idealised Irish masculinity and the role of popular culture and fiction in promoting or rejecting official versions of Irish manhood Therein this book crucially analyses both critically acclaimed Irish authors such as Kate O'Brien John McGahern and Elizabeth Bowen alongside lesser known writers who fell victim to the mid century's rigorous culture of censorship such as M J Farrell Norah Hoult and John Broderick Wright's research in this book provides a holistic approach to scrutinising the construction of post colonial Irish masculinity including analysis on drinking culture civil service employment queer relationships and the value of violence in masculine currencies
