Kelly,2014-10-17 I have here the task of introducing several writers all treating one subject but each in his own way and that way not the way of the others I could truthfully say that the occasion affords me much pleasure but I say more than that for it affords me so much pleasure that I hesitate to use the trite old sentence without a warning to the reader that I mean it Why this pleasure It might arise out of my knowledge of the merits of the writers but it does not It might well arise out of my knowledge of the usual excellence of their writings but it does not My pleasure comes out of this that zealous and learned men at last are turning to a study of how we best can solve a problem for our day and age that is the most important problem of the Church in America and in the rest of the world Not that others did not solve it in other days The Apostles did Francis Xavier did Brebeuf and Jogues did De Smet did It is a problem however very unlike one of mathematics in that it changes with the changing world The answer does not change The basic methods of working it out do not change but the pupils do change They change greatly as the generations pass Active respectful judicious reasonable they may have been at times but in a few years they become the opposite Human nature is like that Today they are a greater problem than ever before because many of them have lost touch with the foundation of the eternal principles while others have stuffed their ears with the impenetrable wool of inherited prejudices The task is the same The work to be done is the same But what might be called the difficulties of the job are new Alas there is something else that is new and that is the appearance of the teachers in the strange places they are called upon to visit Hitherto they taught but in familiar surroundings to familiar and friendly listeners and from a familiar rostrum These teachers were so few and the listeners so many that little thought could be given to the crowd that wandered around outside or timidly hung about the edges There was enough to do to take care of those who had without giving much more than a passing thought to those who had not But that situation could not last It was not Apostolic and what is more to the point it was not what Christ commanded He had thought of all He wanted all His Gospel was for all He built his church for all His ministers like His truth belonged to all We knew that even when we could not put our knowledge to work outside our own flocks We are now beginning to worry about the fact that we knew it Thank God for the worry This book is a symposium of a new uneasiness and anxiety uneasiness about ourselves and anxiety about others It is not however a symposium to give us trouble but to give us consolation When we worried only about what we had we were doing only half the worrying Our Lord wanted us to do So it really gives me pleasure to present these gentlemen and ask that they be given a hearing They are not going to say the last word on the subject of How to Convert but they are going to say a useful word a needed word a consoling word and a word that many have waited long to hear The Salesianum ,1928

Pope Francis and the Event of Encounter John C. Cavadini, Donald Wallenfang, 2018-01-19 Since being elected to the Chair of St Peter on March 13 2013 Pope Francis has given unique shape to the meaning of the new evangelization With his emphasis on the concept of encounter and his stunning expression of pastoral ministry in Evangelii gaudium the present pontiff has breathed new life into the Christian vocation to evangelize This book brings together the voices of fifteen American Catholic scholars around the theme of Pope Francis and the Event of Encounter Inaugurating the new series Global Perspectives on the New Evangelization this book incorporates a variety of approaches and questions in order to amplify the theology behind the pontificate of Pope Francis and the most recent developments in the new evangelization Among the topics treated in the book are mercy ecology doctrine culture and the life and ministry of Jorge Mario Bergoglio The reader will be delighted with an array of perspectives that promise to give inspiration for embarking on further frontiers of the new evangelization

Public Confessions Rebecca L. Davis, 2021-09-15 Personal reinvention is a core part of the human condition Yet in the mid twentieth century certain private religious choices became lightning rods for public outrage and debate Public Confessions reveals the controversial religious conversions that shaped modern America Rebecca L Davis explains why the new faiths of notable figures including Clare Boothe Luce Whittaker Chambers Sammy Davis Jr Marilyn Monroe Muhammad Ali Chuck Colson and others riveted the American public Unconventional religious choices charted new ways of declaring an authentic identity amid escalating Cold War fears of brainwashing and coercion Facing pressure to celebrate a specific vision of Americanism these converts variously attracted and repelled members of the American public Whether the act of changing religions was viewed as selfish reckless or even unpatriotic it provoked controversies that ultimately transformed American politics Public Confessions takes intimate history to its widest relevance and in so doing makes you see yourself in both the private and public stories it tells

Commonweal ,1927 American Ecclesiastical Review Herman Joseph Heuser, 1929 The Downside Review ,1928 Authentically Black and Truly Catholic Matthew J. Cressler, 2017-11-14 Explores the contentious debates among Black Catholics about the proper relationship between religious practice and racial identity Chicago has been known as the Black Metropolis But before the Great Migration Chicago could have been called the Catholic Metropolis with its skyline defined by parish spires as well as by industrial smoke stacks and skyscrapers This book uncovers the intersection of the two Authentically Black and Truly Catholic traces the developments within the church in Chicago to show how Black Catholic activists in the 1960s and 1970s made Black Catholicism as we know it today The sweep of the Great Migration brought many Black migrants face to face with white missionaries for the first time and transformed the religious landscape of the urban North The hopes migrants had for their new home met with the desires of missionaries to convert entire neighborhoods Missionaries and migrants forged fraught relationships with one another and tens of thousands of Black men and women became Catholic in the middle decades of the twentieth century as a result These Black Catholic converts saved failing parishes by embracing relationships and ritual life that distinguished them from the evangelical churches proliferating around them. They praised the quiet dignity of the Latin Mass while distancing themselves from the gospel choir altar calls and shouts of amen increasingly common in Black evangelical churches. Their unique rituals and relationships came under intense scrutiny in the late 1960s when a growing group of Black Catholic activists sparked a revolution in U.S. Catholicism. Inspired by both Black Power and Vatican II, they fought for the self-determination of Black parishes and the right to identify as both Black and Catholic. Faced with strong opposition from fellow Black Catholics, activists became missionaries of a sort as they sought to convert their coreligionists to a distinctively Black Catholicism. This book brings to light the complexities of these debates in what became one of the most significant Black Catholic communities in the country, changing the way we view the history of American Catholicism.

Turn the Pulpit Loose P. Pope-Levison, 2016-04-30 Turn the Pulpit Loose features the lives and words of eighteen women evangelists including Sojourner Truth and Evangeline Booth and lesser-known figures such as Jarena Lee, an African Methodist from the early 1800s, and Uldine Utley, a child evangelist in the early 1900s who helped to shape American religious life from the nation's infancy to the present. Highlighting substantial primary sources—sermons, articles, diaries, letters, speeches, and autobiographies—Priscilla Pope Levison weaves together fascinating narratives of each woman's life, her conversion, and calling to preach, her primary evangelistic method, and her reflections about women in general. This anthology, complete with photographs of each evangelist, is an indispensable resource for a wide range of academic fields, including religion, history, women's studies, and literature. Bulletin of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, 1929

Building the Old Time Religion Priscilla Pope-Levison, 2015-01-08 During the Progressive Era, a period of unprecedented ingenuity, women evangelists built the old-time religion with brick and mortar, uniforms, and automobiles. Fresh converts and devoted protégés across America, entrepreneurial women founded churches, denominations, religious training schools, rescue homes, rescue missions, and evangelistic organizations. Until now, these intrepid women have gone largely unnoticed, though their collective yet unchoreographed decision to build institutions in the service of evangelism marked a seismic shift in American Christianity. In this ground-breaking study, Priscilla Pope Levison dusts off the unpublished letters, diaries, sermons, and yearbooks of these pioneers to share their personal tribulations and public achievements. The effect is staggering. With an uncanny eye for essential details and a knack for historical nuance, Pope Levison breathes life into not just one or two of these women but two dozen. The evangelistic empire of Aimee Semple McPherson represents the pinnacle of this shift from itinerancy to institution-building. Her name remains legendary. Yet she built her institutions on the foundation of the work of women evangelists who preceded her. Their stories, untold until now, reveal the cunning and strength of women who forged a path for every generation, including our own, to follow. Back cover
