The Parts of the

The respiratory system is made up of

- Nose
- Pharynx (throat)
- Larynx (voice box)
- Trachea (windpipe)
- Bronchi (airways branching from the trachea into smaller bronchioles)
- Alveoli

Right and Left Lungs

Our respiratory system has the main part where air enters the body. Internal (anterior) and external (posterior) views.

The nasal cavity is made up of nasal septum, bone and hyaline cartilage. The nasal cavity is made up of nasal septum, bone and hyaline cartilage.

Alveoli (small sacs) are located at the end of the bronchioles. Air is inhaled or exhaled to match the temperature, moisture and volume of the air.

The Mechanisms

- Right and left bronchi
- Right is more acute (in angle) and shorter than left bronchi entering the right lung
- Left bronchi is lower and narrower
- It divides into
- Subdividing bronchi
- Terminal bronchi

The mechanism of respiration involves the contraction and relaxation of the muscles of respiration and the elastic connective tissue.

Mechanism of Respiration

- During normal quiet breathing the muscles involved are
- Diaphragm
- External intercostal muscles
- Internal intercostal muscles
- External intercostal muscles
- Internal intercostal muscles

- Inhalation - The muscles of respiration contract and utilize energy to do so, this is an active process as it uses energy. Inhalation last approximately 2 seconds.
- Exhalation - The muscles of respiration relax and the elastic connective tissue pulls the rib cage upwards and outwards.
- The diaphragm contracts when contracted, increasing the thoracic cavity.
- As the rib cage contracts, the pressure inside decreases, resulting in negative pressure, since the negative pressure is below atmospheric pressure, air is drawn in.
- Exhalation - A passive process, doesn't use energy.
- Relaxation of the external intercostal muscles allows the rib cage to move down and in and the relaxation of the diaphragm reduces the size of the thoracic cavity.
- As the rib cage relaxes, the pressure in the rib cage increases, resulting in positive pressure, since it is greater than atmospheric pressure, air is forced out.

Factors Affecting Respiration

- Compliance - Loss of elasticity of the connective tissues in the lungs will increase breathing effort.
- Resistance - Increase of the resistance to air flow. High compliance, lung walls are relaxed easily. Low compliance, lung walls are resistant to relaxation.
- Flow resistance
- Resistance to air flow
- Resistance to air flow
- Resistance to air flow

Lung Volumes

- Residual lung volume - the volume of air that remains in the lungs after a normal expiration.
- Tidal volume - the volume of air that enters or leaves the lungs during normal breathing.
- Inspiratory reserve volume - the extra amount of air that can be inhaled into the lungs during maximal inspiration.
- Expiratory reserve volume - the extra amount of air that can be exhaled from the lungs during maximal expiration.
- Vital capacity - the maximum amount of air that can be inhaled, tidal volume + inspiratory reserve volume.
- Functional residual capacity - the volume of air remaining in the lungs after a normal expiration.
- Expiratory reserve volume - the largest amount of air that can be expired during maximal expiration.
- Residual volume - the volume of air that remains in the lungs after forced expiration.
- Vital capacity - maximum volume of air which can be moved in and out of the lungs.

Respiratory Patterns

- Normal - normal, unaltered breathing.
- Apnea - no breathing.
- Hyperventilation - An abnormally rapid breathing rate of more than 20 breaths per minute.
- Bradypnea - An abnormally slow rate of breathing.

Composition of Inspired and Expired Air

	Inspired Air	Expired Air
Oxygen	21%	16%
Carbon Dioxide	0.04%	4%
Nitrogen	78%	78%
Water Vapor	Variable	Saturated
