Obligation and Commitment in Family Law Gillian

Douglas, 2018-04-19 A tension lies at the heart of family law Expressed in the language of rights and duties it seeks to impose enforceable obligations on individuals linked to each other by ties that are usually regarded as based on love or blood Taking a contextual approach that draws on history sociology and social policy as well as law and legal theory this book examines the concept of obligation as it has been developed in family law and the difficulties the law has had in translating it from a theoretical and ideological concept into the basis of enforceable actions and duties Increasingly the idea of commitment has been offered as the key organising principle for the recognition of family relationships often as a means of rebutting claims that family ties are becoming attenuated but the meaning and scope of this concept have not been explored The book traces how the notion of commitment is understood and how far it has come to be used as a rationale for imposing the core legal obligations which underpin care and caring within families

Santos-Arteaga, 2019-04-05 This book considers Thorstein Veblen's central preoccupation with the dark places of business enterprise an integral part of the old institutional economics Combining the contributions made by Karl William Kapp and Philip Mirowski it proposes the systematization of an adjoined institutional theory of social costs of business enterprise useful for the analysis of contemporary crises The Dark Places of Business Enterprise explores the research potential of the theory of social costs for the analysis of actual business behavior in the current globalized privatization regime It begins with a detailed outline of Veblen's critique of business enterprise and market competition before illustrating the methodical enrichment of this approach through Kapp's work Finally it concludes by proposing the integration of the Veblenian Kappian approach with Mirowski's theory of markets and business doubt manufacture The resulting theory of social costs will shed light on the ubiquitous business control of society under the now dominant computer based technological infrastructure This interdisciplinary foundation of the theory of social costs encompassing knowledge from computer science and engineering to natural sciences provides the tools required to analyze this great transformation

Metaepistemology Conor McHugh, Jonathan Way, Daniel Whiting, 2018-12-06 Epistemology like ethics is normative Just as ethics addresses questions about how we ought to act so epistemology addresses questions about how we ought to believe and enquire We can also ask metanormative questions What does it mean to claim that someone ought to do or believe something Do such claims express beliefs about independently existing facts or only attitudes of approval and disapproval towards certain pieces of conduct How do putative facts about what people ought to do or believe fit in to the natural world In the case of ethics such questions have been subject to extensive and systematic investigation yielding the thriving subdiscipline of metaethics Yet the corresponding questions have been largely ignored in epistemology there is no serious subdiscipline of metaepistemology This surprising state of affairs reflects a more general tendency for ethics and epistemology to be carried out largely in isolation from each other despite the important substantive and structural connections between them A movement to overturn the general tendency has only recently gained serious momentum and has yet to tackle metanormative questions in a sustained way This edited collection aims to stimulate this project and thus advance the new subdiscipline of metaepistemology Its original essays draw on the sophisticated theories and frameworks that have been developed in metaethics concerning practical normativity examine whether they can be applied to epistemic normativity and consider what this might tell us about both

Moral Responsibility and the Flicker of Freedom Justin A. Capes, 2023 In Moral Responsibility and the Flicker of Freedom Justin A Capes challenges that thought experiments such as the sort devised by Harry Frankfurt are counter examples to the principle that a person is morally responsible for what he did only if he could avoid doing it He argues that far from being counterexamples to the principle Frankfurt cases as they have come to be known actually provide further confirmation of it a conclusion that has important implications for our understanding of free will and moral responsibility

By Steppe, Desert, and Ocean Barry Cunliffe, 2015-09-24 By Steppe Desert, and Ocean is nothing less than the story of how humans first started building the globalized world we know today Set on a huge continental stage from Europe to China it is a tale covering over 10 000 years from the origins of farming around 9000 BC to the expansion of the Mongols in the thirteenth century AD An unashamedly big history it charts the development of European Near Eastern and Chinese civilizations and the growing links between them by way of the Indian Ocean the silk Roads and the great steppe corridor which crucially allowed horse riders to travel from Mongolia to the Great Hungarian Plain within a year Along the way it is also the story of the rise and fall of empires the development of maritime trade and the shattering impact of predatory nomads on their urban neighbours Above all as this immense historical panorama unfolds we begin to see in clearer focus those basic underlying factors the acquisitive nature of humanity the differing environments in which people live and the dislocating effect of even slight climatic variation which have driven change throughout the ages and which help us better understand our world today
