life The two girls Yvette and Lucille risk being suffocated by the life they now lead at the rectory In particular Yvette's desperation is compounded by the fact that she has borrowed a little money from a charity fund that her family manages Her relationship with both her father and aunt suffer She sees her father as a mean spirited and cowardly person for the first time when he reacts savagely to her petty crime But even so the girls try their utmost every day to bring colour and fun into their lives They go on outings with the Framleys their neighbourhood friends On one such outing Yvette encounters a gipsy man and his family She and the other girls have their fortunes told by the gipsy man's wife a magnetic and strong woman who seems to see easily through them The gipsy man also sees deeply into Yvette and the impression he makes on her this first time is unforgettable This first meeting reinforces her disenchantment with the oppressive domesticity of the rectory It also awakens in her a sexual curiosity she has not felt or thought much about before despite her having admirers While on a second visit to the gipsy family she befriends a married Jewish woman who has left her husband and who is now living with her paramour impatiently waiting for her divorce to come through Yvette does not pass judgment on anyone new she meets neither the gipsy nor the Jewish woman because she is young and modern minded But when her father finds out about this friendship he threatens her with the asylum and Yvette realizes that at his heart her father too is mean spirited bigoted provincial and shallow Apparently her father believes that one cannot associate with a wealthy divorced woman who is merely marrying a handsome man who happens to be a war hero as an excuse to dump her first and older husband The novel has a surprise twist at the end A huge flood surges through the vale coming from a burst dam at a nearby reservoir It just so happens that the gipsy man is approaching the rectory house Nobody is at home but Yvette and her blind grandmother In the nick of time the brave gipsy man rescues Yvette despite the fact that the surprise flood washes most of the rectory away drowning the grandmother A moving scene ensues as the gipsy hero breathes life and warmth back into the virginal Yvette who feels the powerful attraction of his manhood and strength She falls asleep and the gipsy disappears Her family returns home to find her safe and they adulate the gipsy as her savior

The Virgin and the Gpsy David Herbert Lawrence, 2020-05-16 The Virgin and the Gypsy is a short novel or novella by English author D H Lawrence It was written in 1926 and published posthumously in 1930 The story is a romance of blossoming spirit The character of young Yvette contains the spirit of youthful unrest curiosity free thinking and unprejudiced innocence Yvette represents the desire for experience and freedom that Lawrence recognized as dominating the imaginations of the younger generation in England The theme of aspiration for authentic experience is carried by her rebellious attitude and is further developed in her natural attraction to the gipsy man Her day to day experience and the responses of her family are intended to contrast the inexperience and desires of youth with the limitations imposed by the strictures of conventional society Social propriety for its own sake a propriety that imposes inhibitions and crushes the possibilities of genuine free thinking and loving experience is one of the main enemies in Lawrence s work Even Mrs Fawcett is shocked at the notion Yvette could be attracted by the gipsy despite the fact that she herself is living with a younger man even before her divorce has come through The gipsy represents male sexuality as well as individual freedom The theme of virginity and its almost unconscious aspiration for experience is synonymous with the collective desires for the entire society before it has been perverted by an education made of prejudice and inhibitions The virgin is inexperienced and is therefore purely free to see the world as it is before others have had time to cause damage Lawrence portrays Yvette as unrestrained in a positive sense She visits the gipsies and the unmarried couple without thinking about any social consequences She has an innate curiosity for an interesting and genuine life The themes of her purity and innocence equate closely with a being absolutely untainted by prejudices or judgment At home the stifling environment created by her Aunt Cissie and the indolent annoying Mater drive Yvette to search for uncharted social waters She is not ashamed of her response to nature when she confesses her strong attraction to the gipsy during conversations with her sister Lucille as well as Mrs Fawcett and Mr Eastwood
