Selected from the Women of Brewster Place G. Naylor, 1991 The Women of Brewster Place Deloris Joan Hastings, 1995 The Fiction of Gloria Naylor Maxine Lavon Montgomery, 2010-11-26 The Fiction of Gloria Naylor is one of the very first critical studies of this acclaimed writer Including an insightful interview with Naylor and focusing on her first four novels the book situates various acts of insurgency throughout her work within a larger framework of African American opposition to hegemonic authority But what truly distinguishes this volume is its engagement with African American vernacular forms and twentieth century political movements In her provocative analysis Maxine Lavon Montgomery argues that Naylor constantly attempts to reconfigure the home and homespace to be more conducive to black self actualization thus providing a stark contrast to a dominant white patriarchy evident in a broader public sphere Employing a postcolonial and feminist theoretical framework to analyze Naylor's evolving body of work Montgomery pays particular attention to black slave historiography tales of conjure trickster lore and oral devices involving masking word play and code switching the vernacular strategies that have catapulted Naylor to the vanguard of contemporary African American letters Montgomery argues for the existence of home as a place that is not exclusively architectural or geographic in nature She posits that in Naylor's writings home exists as an intermediate space embedded in cultural memory and encoded in the vernacular Home closely resembles a highly symbolic signifying system bound with vexed issues of racial sovereignty as well as literary authority Through a reinscription of the subversive frequently clandestine acts of resistance on the part of the border subject those outside the dominant culture Naylor recasts space in such a way as to undermine reader expectation and destabilize established models of dominance influence and control Thoroughly researched and sophisticated in its approach The Fiction of Gloria Naylor will be essential reading for scholars and students of African American American and Africana Literary and Cultural studies Gloria Naylor Charles E. Wilson Jr., 2001-05-30 In each of her five novels Gloria Naylor invites the reader to join her characters in their journeys to move beyond established boundaries and embrace an increasingly diverse society With lucid analyses of each work this Critical Companion helps readers comprehend how Naylor successfully links the trials of her African American characters to the struggles of human beings at variance with seemingly insurmountable obstacles Insights into Naylor's own struggles and successes are provided in a richly drawn biographical chapter which incorporates fresh materials from a recent interview conducted for this book Naylor's place within the larger framework of the African American narrative traditions is considered as well Beginning with a full chapter on Naylor's debut success The Women of Brewster Place 1982 the literary components of each novel are examined Linden Hills 1985 Mama Day 1988 Bailey's Cafe 1992 and The Men of Brewster Place 1998 In addition to a comprehensive plot synopsis character portraits and thematic discussions given for each all works are carefully related to their historical contexts By understanding the extent to which seminal events such as the Great Migration and the ushering in of the Civil Rights Movement serve as the background for Naylor's works readers can better appreciate them Throughout the text particularly in the alternate critical readings provided all terms and concepts are clearly explained for the student and the general reader A select bibliography cites biographical sources interviews reviews criticism and related works of interest

Rape, Silence, and Song in Gloria Naylor's The Women of Brewster Place Deborah C. P. De Rosa, 1991

The Women of Brewster Place Lauren Fuentes, 2022 Gloria Naylor's The Women of Brewster Place is a landmark novel of black female empowerment yet even as the novel affirms the necessity for black women to band together Brewster Place simultaneously points to the idea that systemic racism and sexism may be a hurdle over which the community cannot leap other systemic changes must be implemented before true equality can be achieved This novel forces readers to grapple with questions that may present unsavory answers Is it possible to eradicate systemic racism To what degree do the subjugated have the ability to change the prejudicial system in which they live Are racism and sexism innate problems to American society or are there aspects of human nature that cause division Even as Naylor presents her diverse vibrant multigenerational community of African American women creating an aura of hope that permeates each story cycle the idea that hope is an elusive potentially impossible expectation is present from the novel's inception as Naylor frames Brewster Place with Langston Hughes's A Dream Deferred and then chooses to end with the final story cycle being presented as a dream a mere vision of complete black female camaraderie that breaks down systemic barriers a fantasy that is No more yielding but a dream Naylor 126 African-American Writers Amy Sickels, 2010 This volume includes essays and discussions about the African American authors most commonly assigned in classrooms Women Without Men Donald J. Greiner, 1993 Donald J Greiner s provocative new study evaluates the fiction of ten contemporary female novelists to ask questions about gender relations in American fiction Looking closely at the reaction of female writers to what Greiner describes as a central paradigm of American literature men bonding in the wilderness in an attempt to escape women and the social restrictions they represent Greiner contends that female novelists have not only adopted the venerable model but also adapted it so that women venture into the wilderness while excluding men from the quest Greiner first shows how such contemporary white male novelists as Frederick Busch John Irving and Larry Woiwode modify the literary model established by Cooper Melville and Twain to include women in the bonding process He then argues that recent female novelists are not so eager to allow males into the wilderness or to bond with them Rather than facilitate a closing of the gender gap many contemporary female writers insist on separating the sexes Greiner frames his analysis with discussions of prominent feminist literary theorists and feminist psychologists including Carolyn Heilbrun Rachel Brownstein Nancy Chodorow Janice Raymond and Judith Kegan Gardiner From close readings of recent novels by Gloria Naylor Marianne Wiggins Joan Didion Diane Johnson Marilynne Robinson Mona Simpson Hilma Wolitzer Meg Wolitzer Joan Chase and Lisa Alther Greiner finds three significant differences in the way contemporary female novelists employ the quest plot the patriarchal text is not repudiated but revised to accommodate female characters who readily accept the traditional masculine call to the quest once outside the bounds of society female bonds do not always hold males are excluded from the bonding process To contrast the gender exclusivity favored by contemporary female writers Greiner ends his study with a discussion of bonding as portrayed by contemporary male novelist Douglas Ungar
