Extraterritorial investments in agriculture in Africa: the perspectives of China and South Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations ,2020-11-30 The 2008 global food price crisis and the resurgence of food prices in 2010 2011 caused both widespread concern and expectations On the one hand countries whose food supply depends on procuring food from international markets saw food price spikes as threats to their national food security On the other hand investors saw in these price spikes an opportunity to make profitable investments in agriculture Either as threat or opportunity food price spikes raised interest in Africa whose lands are fertile and have unrealised potential Concerns of a possible land acquisitions in Africa and in particular the impacts of Large Scale Land Based Investments in Agriculture LSLBIA on local communities became prominent policy and academic themes Unfortunately quantifying the phenomenon has proved hard due to the difficulty of finding empirical evidence As a result debates are either theoretical or based on anecdotal evidence This publication thus explores a different path and explores the reasons why entities from China and South Africa were interested in investing in African agriculture This publication examines the reasons why investors were interested in Africa and the relationship that these bear to The Voluntary Guidelines on the Responsible Governance of Tenure of Land Fisheries and Forests in the Context of National Food Security the Voluntary Guidelines or VGGT While primarily aimed at governments the VGGT also contain important provisions that are applicable to the private sector They focus on helping investors pursue their projects in ways that recognise and respect legitimate tenure rights and human rights In addition the VGGT also contain provisions and encourages good practices for responsible investment in land forests and fisheries The VGGT are a valuable tool for helping investors minimise risk while also safeguarding the rights of local communities China and South Africa represent important sources of LSLBIA in Africa although the bulk of such investment comes from western countries Their investment may intensify in the future for a variety of reasons First China has the third largest land area in the world but its expansion through additional land use is limited Second the dual agricultural economy of South Africa is preventing commercial farming located in well endowed areas from expanding into remote resource poor areas where small scale subsistence based production is prevalent This publication assesses the extent to which selected investors from China and South Africa and the governments of those countries have adopted the best practices represented by the VGGT in relation to LSLBIA in Guidelines for sustainable large-scale land deals in Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2018-08-09 Over the last few years agribusinesses investment funds and government agencies have demonstrated a growing interest in acquiring large portions of land mostly in developing countries and particularly in sub Saharan Africa In the host countries investors and government see these acquisitions as opportunities to attract foreign investment that will enhance food and energy security and stimulate socio economic development Analysing a number of these deals in Africa suggests that these objectives are usually not attained and that their sustainability appears to be uncertain Guidelines on irrigation investment projects Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2019-04-15 Irrigation has been and will continue to be an agricultural and rural investment priority Development of the irrigation sector faces multiple challenges including water scarcity and degradation competition over shared resources and the impact of climate change Innovations are needed to address these challenges as well as emerging needs and to promote productive equitable and sustainable water management These guidelines produced by an inter agency team highlight experiences and lessons learned from global irrigation investment operations They introduce innovative approaches tools and references and provide practical guidance on how to incorporate or apply them at each stage of the investment project cycle The guidelines will be a useful resource for national and international professionals involved in irrigation investment operations *Water use in livestock production systems and supply chains.
